DISGUST OVER NURSERY RAID

THIEVES tore through a nursery school in Wolverhampton, stealing £900 raised by pupils for Children in Need.

Eastfield Nursery School was forced to close after its front door was ripped off, phone lines cut, windows smashed and a safe stolen. Its alarm sensors were also destroyed and filing cabinets and cupboards torn apart.

By Tim Spiers

Thousands of pounds worth of damage was caused when the school in Griffin Street off Willenhall Road, was broken in to over the weekend and it is believed the culprits returned several times over the 48-hour period. It was due to reopen yesterday.

Headteacher Emma Smith said: "We're devastated. The staff are in a state of shock and parents are appalled and angry.

Disruption

"This is a real community school and it's hit everyone hard. Not only has it caused disruption to the children's education, but it's a huge inconvenience with everything that needs sorting out.

"The children and their families worked so hard last week collecting for Children in Need and now all of that is gone."

As well as the charity money, five new iPads the pupils haven't even used yet were also taken. To raise money for Children in Need, youngsters sold wristbands, held a raffle, had a dress-up day and brought in sponsor money from their families.

Police are now examining CCTV which shows a group of three people striking on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights.

West Midlands Police spokeswoman Catherine Hickman said: "It is believed the offenders returned to the site several times over the weekend, during which several items were stolen including cash and charity collection money.

"A door had been smashed and offenders had caused significant damage to the premises."

Ms Smith said she had no choice but to close the school for a second day to the 150 pupils, who are aged up to three.

"They've gone so far as cutting the manhole cover outside, lifting that up and cutting cables. They obviously thought it would be the alarm line."

Anyone with information can call the police on 101.

Administrator Phyllis James said: ""It's absolutely disgusting what they've done - it's just horrible. The only saving grace is that the classrooms the children use haven't been touched. But the most disgusting thing is them stealing the Children in Need money."

Councillor Phil Page, cabinet member for schools, added: "The thefts and damage over the weekend are despicable acts which have distressed teachers and pupils. Vital and valuable teaching equipment has been stolen as well as hard earned charity money."

Benefits worker in £32k swindle

A BENEFITS assessor has admitted swindling £32,000 from the council he worked at.

Anthony McHale committed the sophisticated fraud over two years at Wolverhampton City Council.

The 55-year-old pleaded guilty at Wolverhampton Magistrates Court to fraud by abusing his position between September 2012 and September this year.

McHale, of Broad Lane North in Willenhall, was suspended from his position by council bosses when the offence was discovered. Following the case, the council acknowledged the guilty plea and said it took a zero tolerance approach to such crimes.

Loss

Mr Roger Bleazard, prosecuting, told the court that McHale had carried out the fraud with 'some sophistication' and had committed a 'severe breach of trust.'

He admitted six charges of fraud by abuse of position, in that he dishonestly abused his position and intended to cause loss to the city council. The fraud amounted to £32,000.

He was granted unconditional bail after pleading guilty. He will be sentenced at Birmingham Crown Court on December 12.

Prisons' drive for officers

THE Midlands' worst prisons are on a recruiting drive with five jails across the region advertising.

Brinsford, Featherstone, Stafford, Drake Hall and Swinfen Hall, are looking for prison officers after it was revealed that staffing levels have plummeted.

It comes after it was revealed that there are 700 fewer officers staffing the West Midlands' jails, with the Howard League for Penal Reform warning that the prison system is in crisis.Brinsford

Police station hours to be slashed

FRONT desks at four police stations in Wolverhampton will close or have their opening hours slashed under £3 million cuts.

Inquiry desks at Wednesfield and Bilston will be completely closed and the 24-hour service at the city's main Bilston Street station will be reduced to 8am-10pm.

Low Hill, meanwhile, will remain manned by volunteers between Monday and Thursday from 9.30am until 12pm. The main desk at Willenhall is also to be shut completely.

In total, West Midlands Police will close 27 front offices, with more than 90 of the 170 jobs at risk.

Police chiefs say it follows an independent review that shows the majority of the public no longer visit stations and instead make phone calls, use the internet and social media to contact officers.

Monitored

More than 7,000 people were interviewed and visitor numbers to front offices were monitored as part of the review. It found fewer than one in 10 had been to one in the previous 12 months.

But Wednesfield councillor and former Wolverhampton mayor, Milkinder Jaspal described the move as 'suicidal' by the police. He said: "One of the biggest concerns I hear from residents is how they can't get hold of the police. By shutting the front desk this just closes another avenue for residents and it is a huge blow for those in Wolverhampton.

"It is a suicidal decision that will destroy confidence in the community. I fear more people will be looking to take things into their own hands.

"We had a serious incident in Wednesfield a few weeks ago and for days residents had been trying to contact police but no one came out.

"This will only make matters worse," he added.

Schools to expand despite opposition

A £15 MILLION scheme to expand primary schools has been given the go ahead-despite more than half of people consulted on the plans opposing them.

Mobile classrooms, extensions to schools and more child places are all part of the project given the green light by Wolverhampton City Council.

But one councillor has vowed to fight the decision after almost 60 per cent of parents, teachers, governors consulted opposed the idea. Among the concerns raised is a lack of room at schools and parking problems.

Added

A spike in the number of school pupils in 2015 and 2016 is behind the temporary expansion of five schools – Bushbury Hill, Loxdale, St Martin's CofE, Stowlawn and West Park primary schools – by 270 pupils in total.

Bilston CofE, Eastfield and Manor Primary and Westacre Infant School will also be permanently expanded, with 465 places and new buildings. And one more school is due to be added to the list.

The city council's education chief Councillor Phil Page said: "The authority has a huge responsibility to provide sufficient places."

Views call on super council

BUSINESS are being urged to give their views over moves for the Black Country and Birmingham to join forces to gain more powers and funding.

Walsall Council leader Sean Coughlan said organisations in the education sector need to have their say.

The town. with Wolverhampton, Sandwell and Dudley is teaming up with Birmingham to form a super council on major issues but they would continue independently.

Strike threat at new Jaguar plant

JAGUAR Land Rover could find itself facing strike action – just weeks after its flagship £500 million engine factory in Wolverhampton was opened by The Queen.

Thousands of workers, members of the Unite union, have rejected a pay offer worth 14 per cent over three years because they say it fails to recognise their role in making the company a global success.

It comes as the company revealed a drop in its recent profits figures and a fall in its sales in October.

Roger Maddison, national officer at the Unite union, warned: "JLR needs to get back around the negotiating table and hammer out a deal that meets the workforce's expectations and shares the rewards of the company's success fairly. Otherwise we will be looking to ballot our members for industrial action across the company's five sites."

An overwhelming 96 per cent of the 14,000 Unite union members across all the company's sites – including the engine factory at Wolverhampton – voted to reject JLR's latest pay offer and proposed pension changes.

In a brief statement following the ballot, a company spokesman said: "Jaguar Land Rover is very disappointed that the trade unions have voted to reject its pay and conditions offer. We remain committed to reaching a negotiated settlement."

Meanwhile new figures released by JLR revealed pre-tax profits slipped by £59m, to £609m, for the three months to the end of September, although sales boosted its revenue figure by £196m to £4.8 billion.

Debts warning over shake-up in benefits

SWEEPING changes to benefits will mean thousands of council house tenants fall into debt, it has been revealed.

An organisation in charge of council housing is having to warn people that they face being evicted unless they keep on top of their money as a new system sees them paid the cash into their bank accounts instead of their benefits going to the landlords.

Wolverhampton Homes expects that Universal Credit will eventually affect around 8,500 of tenants in its 23,000 homes.

There were half a million working age people on benefits in February this year in the West Midlands.

There were 32,235 in Wolverhampton, 30,885 in Walsall, 38,595 in Sandwell and 30,125 in Dudley as well as 8,810 in Cannock Chase, 8,160 in Wyre Forest, 7,780 in Stafford, 6,265 in South Staffordshire in 6,055 in Lichfield.

Risk

The new benefit will next year replace jobseeker's allowance, housing benefit and other welfare payments for people who are out of work or on low incomes in favour of one single benefit.

It will begin to be rolled out in the West Midlands from February, initially only to new claimants of working age. That means anyone on benefit at the time it is introduced will not be affected but anyone who loses their job or has to begin claiming welfare for another reason will be on it.

Wolverhampton Homes is warning of a risk of people falling behind with their payments as they will be responsible for using their benefits to pay the landlord, rather than the money being transferred directly to the housing provider.

Mark Henderson, director of housing, said: "There's a risk of temptation."

Beauty of a way to aid city charity

BLACK Country businesswomen will be raising funds to give children a better Christmas during a charity event next month.

WV Inspired, a network for aspirational women in Wolverhampton, aims to support The Haven Wolverhampton's Christmas Gift Appeal at the free event on December 3 at the WV1 Bar & Restaurant at the Molineux Stadium.

The evening will feature more than 30 exhibitors including hair, beauty, professional services and luxury gifts along with a range of therapists offering taster pamper sessions including massage, facials, reflexology and Reiki.

There will be a talk from experienced Style Your Soul image consultant Sue Horne and motivator Liz Keaney will speak about 'How to be a Warrior Women'.

The event, which will run from 5pm to 8.30pm, will also include a charity raffle and silent auction.

Organiser Charlotte Clode, associate solicitor at FBC Manby Bowdler, said: "The Haven Christmas Gift Appeal 2014 is a great cause."Book in advance via www.charitypamperevening.eventbrite.co.uk

Birds killed after farm raid

Farm manager Mark Game views the empty hut where a cockerel and two chickens were killed by a fox at Northycote Farm, Wolverhampton

STAFF and supporters of Wolverhampton's Northycote Farm are rallying round after vandals broke in and caused chaos.

Birds were killed after yobs tipped over and opened animal enclosures at the Underhill Lane site.

The vandalism allowed a fox to gain entry and kill Noel, along with a three-year-old cockerel and two hens.

Farm and countryside ranger Mark Game said Noel – a Norfolk Black turkey –was a particular favourite with many of the thousands of youngsters who visit the farm each year.

"Noel was a bad-tempered beast but the kids absolutely loved him," Mr Game said. "He was a very large bird and was with us for a good four years. All of our pens are secure and checked throughout the night, so whoever did this must have deliberately wanted to release the animals."

The farm, which welcomes up to 2,000 visitors a week during busy periods, had previously lost almost all of its livestock during a similar raid in 2012.

Farm staff say they are now on the lookout for a new turkey, while they have already received an offer to replace the chickens from a generous member of the public.

"The response from the public has been really positive, with people calling us up and asking how things are."

The raid, which also saw the main gates vandalised, happened in the early hours of Saturday.

Players to kick off city lights switch-on

They will be joined by Hollyoaks star Joe Tracini and the city's mayor Mike Heap for the big-switch on at 5pm on November 26 in Market Square.

Joe, the son of comedian Joe Pasquale, is appearing in the Cinderella pantomime at the Grand Theatre.

The celebrations will include a mini market, funfair and traditional Christmas music played by the Lady Wulfrun steam organ, belonging to Second World War veteran Joe Davies.

The family festivities also include entertainment from Free Radio and children's TV characters Ben and Holly as well as a spectacular firework finale at 6.30pm.

Councillor Elias Mattu, Wolverhampton City Council's leisure chief, said: "We want to see as many families as possible pack out Market Square and enjoy our Christmas lights switch on and fireworks show.

£25m science block opens

A NEW £25 million science block at the University of Wolverhampton has officially opened to students.

The ground and first floors of the block in Stafford Street are now open.

The old 1960s teaching building has been refurbished and extended both upward and outward and features state-of-the-art facilities for 2,500 students and 150 Faculty of Science and Engineering staff.

Professor Geoff Layer, the university's vice-chancellor, said the £25m facility was a 'real statement'.

Residents evacuated as gas pipe damaged

AROUND 45 residents were evacuated from their homes after a gas pipe at a shop was drilled through.

Firefighters were called to the grocers on Old Heath Road, Wolverhampton, at 8.30pm on Monday.

Wolverhampton watch commander Ivan Lilley said they were called after workers drilling into a wall at the front of the shop accidentally went into the pipe.

Mr Lilley said while the hole was only the width of a drill piece, about 7mm, it was the external side of the mains, so turning the meter off made no difference.

Ventilate

They called the gas board to isolate the supply to stop the leak.

Residents in nearby properties were evacuated from their homes for about two hours as a safety precaution and the area was cordoned off. Mr Lilley said they had breathing apparatus and a hose on standby just in case.

They were able to ventilate the building, and remained on the scene to check the gas levels were safe on all floors of the building, including the loft space.

Eight firefighters attended in total. No one required medical attention.

'Nightmare' of roadworks

A COUNCILLOR has branded emergency roadworks in Essington a 'nightmare'.

Wolverhampton Road in Essington closed on Saturday and will be for the rest of this week.

Severn Trent is undertaking emergency repair work on a collapsed sewer.

The road is one of the main routes between Essington and Wolverhampton and Essington Parish Council chairman David Clifft said diversions were causing problems for motorists.

"It's a complete nightmare."

Liam joins star choir on new Band Aid single

Liam Payne arrives for the recording

MUSIC acts including Wolverhampton's One Direction star Liam Payne have been working round the clock on the new new Band Aid 30 single - which was released on |Monday after its first airing on the X Factor.

Big names from the world of music gathered to record the new single at the weekend. The music video was edited in "record time" so it could be shown to millions of viewers on the television talent show on Sunday and was made available to download the next day.

It came as the official BBC Children In Need charity single, featuring an all-star choir of famous faces, hit number one in the official charts.

Some of British music's best known stars including Ed Sheeran, Ellie Goulding and Rita Ora sing on the reworked Band Aid track Do They Know It's Christmas?

The video was screened on Sunday's X Factor results show fronted by Dermot O'Leary as the new recording marks the 30th anniversary of the song.

It was originally put together to raise funds for famine relief in Ethiopia. This latest version is expected to raise millions to ease Africa's Ebola crisis. As singers arrived at the studio in London's Notting Hill on Saturday morning to record the track, Bob Geldof revealed George Osborne called him to reveal he would waive VAT on the single.

He said: "The record, it's a song, it's a track, but it's an event, and the next stage now is to turn this into a phenomenon like it was in the 80s, and the only way to do that is to get people to buy the thing.

Another year of misery at overcrowded hospital A&E

PATIENTS are still regularly being treated in corridors at New Cross Hospital's A&E department, despite multi-million pound improvements.

Hospital bosses say patients will have to grin and bear the misery for another year, before a new £30m Emergency Centre opens in November 2015.

The centre includes a badly-needed new A&E unit and good progress is being made, with a giant steel structure now towering over the Wednesfield site.

A £4m action plan last winter which included extra staff temporarily eased pressure on the overrun department. But this summer has been one of the busiest on record, with an unexpected early bout of norovirus in August fuelling fears of a tough winter ahead.

Broken

David Loughton, chief executive of the Royal Wolverhampton NHS Trust, admitted the situation was 'horrendous' with staff continuously under huge pressure.

He said: "It's just horrendous. The whole system is broken. I don't think this winter's going to be particularly great. I can't remember us having norovirus as early. We're trying to get too many patients through too small a bed number.

"Things got better when we added beds to A&E last year but a couple of months later patients were back on the corridors and it's happening all the time.

"It's just a case of bracing ourselves for the next year."

IT is the latest scheme earmarked to transform a city centre.

Building work on a major office accommodation development for the heart of Wolverhampton is now under way. The development is part of the Interchange 10 scheme, which will see the redevelopment of the city's railway station and Metro stop.

Wolverhampton City Council has invested £10.6million in the project, which aims to attract further investment in the area, create jobs and form part of the new central transport hub.

The city council's cabinet member for economic regeneration and prosperity Peter Bilson was joined by the developer partners to see the first part of the structure put in place.

Councillor Bilson said: "We can see the start of construction work on the office buildings – the only top grade office accommodation in our area. It is a major milestone for this leading city centre regeneration project."

Games medallist is such a good sport

PUPILS in Bilston were put through their paces by a Commonwealth Games medallist and a 'sportivater'.

Villiers Primary School hosted the Sports for Schools event, with retired freestyle swimmer Grant Turner and the programme's 'sportivater' and event host Kev Gould leading the session.

Headteacher Duncan Cocker said everyone gave their all during the circuit activities. He said: "What a wonderful day we've had, all the children from Nursery to Year 6 have taken part and really enjoyed themselves.

"Days like this highlight the importance we place on enjoyment of sport at Villiers and the opportunities open to our youngsters."

Beginning with the high-energy activities, the day finished with an assembly where Mr Turner talked about his career and lessons learned in life, followed by a Q&A session.

Mr Turner, born in Swindon, was part of the silver medal-winning team in the 4x100m freestyle relay at the Delhi Commonwealth Games, and competed at the London Olympics and 2011 World Championships. The 25-year-old retired earlier this year.

Villiers pupils were sponsored for taking part in the event, and dressed up in costumes celebrating their sporting heroes.

The day was led by the PE co-ordinator Ameera Woolley and her sports' team. Sports for Schools visits more than 800 primary schools each year.

A COUNCILLOR is calling for speed checks on two main roads in Wolverhampton.

Councillor Wendy Thompson, Conservative councillor for the Tettenhall Wightwick ward, said residents in Castlecroft have flagged problems with speeding vehicles.

She has asked the Wolverhampton City Council to instigate checks on Castlecroft Road and Windmill Lane, after similar checks were carried out on other roads in the area.

THE BEST OF PETER RHODES

A READER says he has already been overwhelmed by Christmas spirit. He rushed out and bought his wife a new coal shovel, even though her battered and splintered old shovel would probably last until the January sales. Sir, she does not deserve you.

MORE green cobblers. A reader reports seeing this on the rear of a builders' van: "To reduce our carbon footprint this vehicle is limited to 70 mph." Which is, of course, the maximum national speed limit.

A READER, aware of my North Country roots, suggests the latest Volkwagen UP, an electric car which costs virtually nothing to run, should appeal to Yorkshire folk. He adds: "Its full name is E-UP. See? It even speaks Yorkshire."

NO-ONE denies that landing a European spacecraft on a comet far, far away is a brilliant technical achievement. However, the Rosetta project has gobbled up more than £1,000 million of our money and we have no choice in such matters. We EU taxpayers are committed by various Euro-treaties to spend colossal amounts of money on space research. Given a democratic choice, how many of us would have voted to send a spaceshot to a comet rather than spending the money on something more pressing? Today our EU bosses may be thrilled to have put a probe on Comet 67P. But if we had invested that £1,000 million in medical research we might have have found a cure for cancer.

THEY'RE still grumbling up in Scotland and the effigy of Alex Salmond at the Lewes bonfire did not improve Anglo-Scottish relations. A contributor to a Scottish newspaper's website tells the tale of a reporter in Dundee who came upon a terrible incident. A pit-bull terrier was attacking a small boy in the street when a man leaped forward and throttled the beast with his bare hands. The reporter pulled out her mobile phone, contacted her office and said: "I've got a great story. Use the headline: Dundee Hero Saves Child by Killing Vicious Dog. The bloodstained hero interrupted her: "Actually, I'm not local," he explained. "I'm from Wolverhampton." The reporter snarled into her mobile: "Change headline to Englishman Kills Family Pet."

I MAY be a little out of touch with cinema etiquette. Since when has sitting in an auditorium among strangers and stuffing your face with a big, greasy, smelly hot dog been acceptable behaviour?

ONE of Auntie Beeb's finest was trying to explain how a piffling £1.1billion fine, imposed by the Financial Conduct Authority on five banks (which will end up being paid by shareholders and customers) is any sort of punishment for dodgy business practices. He solemnly stressed the importance of "reputational damage" to the banks. Now, what reputation would that be?

I REFERRED recently to man landing on the moon in 1969. A conspiracy-minded reader says a) men never went to the moon and b) the proof is on YouTube. In fact a) yes, they did and b) no it isn't. But the more you try to change a conspiracy theorist's mind, the more they think they're on to something. As Elvis was telling me only the other day.

Driving up figures for 'risk' motoring

MORE than 94,000 fines have been handed out for bad driving across the West Midlands over the last year, with new figures revealing the most dangerous parts of the region.

Cannock (WS11) and Hednesford (WS12) postcode areas saw the most dished out with 1,084 and 1,005 penalties dished out for offences of careless driving and speeding.

Third in the table were drivers in WV6 which covers Tettenhall in Wolverhampton and Pattingham and Perton in South Staffordshire where in all 983 tickets were handed out.

Drivers in DY8, which covers Wordsley, Wordsley and Amblecote areas of Stourbridge and DY10 in Harvington, Kidderminster made up the top five in the area with 977 and 966 fines given respectively.

In the Walsall area, WS10 for Darlaston had 589 fines, just ahead of WS9 for Aldridge on 481.

In Sandwell the worst area was Tipton (DY4) with 585 fines, ahead of 554 for B63, Halesowen.

Elsewhere in Wolverhampton one of the highest fines was for WV10, covering Oxley, Bushbury, Fordhouses and Featherstone, with 782 fines.

A total of 94,225 fines were handed out across the West Midlands during 2013, many of which were in areas that have a large number of country roads.

The research was done by road safety charity Brake which is trying to highlight the dangers of poor driving during the current Road Safety Week. In the West Midlands 156 people were killed last year.

Banking on Fred with close shave for Pudsey

By Rob Cox

FROM singing their hearts out to shaving their hair off, the Midlands went Pudsey Bear crazy with wonderful and wacky stunts for Children In Need.

Last Friday the nation tuned-in to be entertained by Sir Terry Wogan and the usual combination of celebrity cameos.

Fred Hamar, Deputy Manager at the Queens Square Wolverhampton branch of Natwest bank, had his head shaved as part of the efforts.

Variety

The bank branch clocked up a total of £500, leaving Fred with no option but to say goodbye to his hair.

Customer Services Officer, Sharon Lett, said: "As soon as he verbally agreed to take part in the head shave, we put posters up so he couldn't back out.

In Heath Town, Wolverhampton, more than 150 people packed into Holy Trinity Church, to see a variety show.

The entertainment was organised by charity Re-entry which helps children who are not in school in the Wolverhampton area.

The charity has received funds from Children in Need in the past.

The show included music performances, dance groups, African drummers and a storyteller.

It was organised by Fran Oliver and Lucy Jackson who work for the charity.

In Walsall, staff at Ormiston Shelfield Community Academy gave their pupils a special treat, pulling together to put on an 'S Factor' variety show. Events included a sponsored silence, cake sales and girls were encouraged to go 'bear-faced'.

Petition for change at 'danger' junction

A 600-signature strong petition will be handed in by councillors demanding change at a 'nightmare' junction near Wolverhampton.

Villagers in Featherstone want Staffordshire County Council to re-think the link between the A460 Cannock Road and The Avenue.

Residents have claimed they are 'risking their lives' pulling out of the junction onto Cannock Road heading to Wolverhampton.

Councillors from Featherstone and Brinsford Parish Council will hand the petition into the county council next month and will also give a copy to South Staffordshire MP Gavin Williamson.

Councillor Frank Beardsmore said: "The number of people signing the petition just shows the level of frustration and anger about this junction.

"Comments coming from people are that it's about time that something is done about it. People feel they are taking their lives in their hands by pulling out at the junction. It is a nightmare.

"From as early as 6am until 7pm at night it is a constant struggle to get out of village and residents have said they are waiting as long as 15 minutes at times."

Darts ticket sales up 400

TICKET sales for this year's Grand Slam of Darts were up 400 on last year, bosses have announced.

Phil Taylor once again triumphed in the annual competition at Wolverhampton Civic Hall, beating Dave Chisnall 16-13 in a dramatic final.

Around 12,000 fans piled into the venue for the nine-day tournament - just 400 shy of the record. And between them they swigged 38,000 pints, ate 1,200 portions of chips, scoffed 734 pies, pasties and sausage rolls and chomped their way through 418 pork baps.

Craft fair fun

BILBROOK will be hosting a Christmas craft fair on Sunday.

The event at the village hall will run from 10.30am -4pm with plenty of festive fun on offer.

Proceeds will be split between village hall fund and the Salvation Army.

Parking present for festive shoppers

SHOPPERS will be offered free parking in the run-up to Christmas.

Fold Street car park, the Mander Centre and Beatties will be open for free on Wednesday nights and Sundays in December.

The free parking starts in School Street on the night Wolverhampton's Christmas lights are switched on, Wednesday, November 26 from 3pm.

The Mander Centre and Beatties car parks will also be free on that day, while they and Fold Street will be free on the following late-night shopping Wednesdays up to Christmas, as well as all Sundays in December and on December 22 and 23.

Wolverhampton City Council's regeneration chief Councillor Peter Bilson said: "By offering free parking in Wolverhampton city centre during the festive season we can draw in more shoppers and boost business for local traders.

"We hope as many people as possible come in to the city to shop and enjoy the festive attractions."

WV One boss Kim Gilmour said the free parking offers in the run up to Christ mas were fantastic news for loyal city centre customers.

Two new child care centres

TWO new child care centres are due to open in Wolverhampton this week.

One is at Merridale Primary School on Aspen Way and the other at Star and Bingley Childrens Centre on Norfolk Road, Penn Fields. They will offer 15 hours free child care for two-year-olds per week.

Merridale Primary School has had its caretaker's bungalow converted into a stand-alone facility which can cater for up to 16 children.

The site at Star and Bingleys Childrens Centre will be able to hold 32 children.

Mistletoe talk

THE South Staffs group of the Staffordshire Wildlife Trust is hoping a talk on mistletoe will get people in the mood for Christmas.

The talk by Dr Michael Jones is at Wombourne Community Centre Library on November 27. Call 01902 892776 for details.

New bus shelters part of £9m scheme

NEW bus shelters are set to be installed in Wolverhampton as part of a £9 million scheme that will also improve transport links to the i54 business park.

The news comes after it emerged taxpayers have shelled out almost £3,000 over the past year to repair vandalised shelters around the city.

Councillor Elias Mattu said: "I welcome the plans to bring new bus shelters to the city. Unfortunately people who damage shelters don't think of who they are affecting, including our elderly people, who need them, especially at this time of year.

"There have always been issues regarding damage to bus shelters but the actions of a small minority shouldn't mean we have to put up with not having them. I would encourage that these new shelters are looked after."

Information

The new shelters will include the latest enhanced information for passengers.

As well as the work in Wolverhampton, Centro has also revealed plans to refurbish Dudley bus station and put a new generation of buses out on the roads.

New Sapphire buses, set to hit the streets this year, will feature leather seats, charging points for mobile phones and free wi-fi. and the capacity to take electronic smartcards, similar to London's Oyster card.

Operator Arriva will also work with Centro to improve transport links to and from the i54 business park, including the launch of the new 54 bus in October.

Arriva Midlands regional managing director, Alex Perry, said: "At Arriva Midlands, we are incredibly proud of the part we play in ensuring our customers have access to the very best transport service possible."

A total of 22 different projects will take place as part of the £9m improvement scheme up until 2016, with the aim of making bus travel more attractive, improving customer satisfaction and growing passenger numbers.

Centro vice-chairman, Councillor Kath Hartley, said: "This brand new partnership agreement commits Centro and Arriva Midlands to working closely together.

"By doing so we can deliver many improvements for passengers that will help make bus travel more attractive in the West Midlands region."

Business BID will bring £3m investment to city

AROUND £3million will be invested in Wolverhampton after businesses backed a proposal for the city to become a Business Improvement District (BID).

Almost 90 per cent of businesses in the city centre voted 'yes' in a ballot to see who was in favour.

Wolverhampton will now become the first BID in the Black Country and join more than 180 which have been set up in the UK since 2005.

The vote gives the go ahead for the team to take forward a business plan, drive investment in the city centre and give local businesses a greater say in the way it is marketed, maintained and managed.

Up to £3m will be invested over five years, with the proposals coming in from next year onwards.

Confidence

Nicholas Pitt, chair of the Wolverhampton BID Task Group and manager of the Mander Centre said: "This is a strong vote of confidence from the businesses who trade here and who clearly see the city's potential for change.

"The investment from local businesses will be used to improve our area, contribute towards a more successful and profitable future, making the city centre a better place for customers and businesses alike."

The BID ballot was run for 28 days in October and November, ending last week.

A majority of votes are needed for a BID to become official.

A task group of prominent businesses – including the Mander Centre, Beatties, Primark, Boots, the Grand Theatre and the Light House – will be responsible for making key decisions for the BID.

Road speed cameras on way back

SPEED cameras will be back in part of the West Midlands next year – with plans to roll them out across the Black Country in 2017.

Last year the costly 'wet film' cameras were switched off by the West Midlands Road Safety Partnership with the police opting for mobile technology to snare speeders.

But a £1 million pilot in Birmingham and Solihull has been backed by Police and Crime Commissioner David Jamieson where new digital camera technology would replace the redundant models.

Bosses have now gone out to tender to find providers of the cameras which they hope will go live as soon as August 2015. The project would finish in April 2017 but there is the possibility of further extensions to the scheme in autumn 2017.

Councillor Tahir Ali, Birmingham City Council's transport chief, said: "Beyond the tragic consequences for families , these reported road traffic collisions also cost over £220 million each year to the Birmingham economy."

Medals are icing on cake for shop staff

Cake artists with their array of award-winning cake designsat Shuga Budz, Compton

IT was the icing on the cake for staff at a Wolverhampton cake shop after they picked up six gongs at a leading show celebrating the best of baking.

Shuga Budz in Bridgnorth Road, Compton, won three golds, one silver and two bronze at Cake International held at the NEC.

In the wedding cake category Rachel Wellsbury picked up a gold medal and was awarded third place overall, owner Debbie Mutting won a silver, while Sarah Phillips and Rachel Dale were awarded bronze. In the decorative exhibits category, Vicki Swann and Amelia Mason both struck gold.

Mrs Mutting, who has been running her cake business for seven years, said: "For me and my girls it is great and gives us a real sense of pride.

"Me and Amelia have entered before and were also runners up in another major cake ceremony. It is fantastic and we have got all the certificates on the wall.

Mrs Mutting, 54, started baking cakes at home but as the business grew she moved to a shop in Lower Green Tettenhall before moving to Compton a year ago.

Asked what was the secret of her shop's success at the competition, she said: "Imagination. They are looking for something imaginative and unique. There also needs to be a lot of skill involved. They also love everything to be precise and very cleanly done."

Bakers from all over Britain descended on Birmingham's NEC.

New Costa due to open at retail park

COSTA Coffee is set to open a new branch in Wolverhampton later this month.

The coffee giant is set to open a store at Bentley Bridge retail park in Wednesfield.

It is thought the opening of the new store will create up to eight new jobs.

The news has been met with a positive response from shoppers, many of whom have previously bemoaned the lack of a dedicated coffee shop on the site.

Chance to show off music talents

WOULD-BE musicians will be able to show off their talents at a live music event at an arts centre.

Light House Media Centre in Wolverhampton will be hosting an open-mic session on November 28, where anybody can turn up and perform in front of the audiences.

The event, in the former Chubb lock works in Fryer Street, starts at 8pm, and admission is free.

Town in need of hotel – councillor

WEDNESFIELD needs its own hotel, a councillor has claimed.

Phil Bateman, who represents Wednesfield North, says the town is expanding so much that is requires accommodation for visitors.

He is calling on investors to look at possible sites, with the draw of Bentley Bridge and the canalside making a hotel sustainable.

Sooty to sweep in

CHILDREN'S TV favourite Sooty will be coming to the Wulfrun Hall next year.

Sweep and Soo will be coming as well. There will be two performances on March 14.

IN MY VIEW

with Mark Andrews

TWENTY-FIVE years ago this month, the final phase of the Merry Hill centre opened, an occasion which has surely transformed the shopping habits of the West Midlands in a way that could never have been envisaged at the outset.

Almost instantly, Marks & Spencer closed its branches in both Dudley and West Bromwich, lured by the free rates and easy parking of the new out-of-town centre.

Initial reports suggested a 70 per cent fall in the number of people shopping in Dudley town centre, and slowly, but surely, it has also affected town and city centres further afield.

A quarter of a century on, its legacy is still a matter for debate.

Some people love the warm, all-weather malls, others hate the devastating impact it has had on town centres which have been there for hundreds of years.

The majority, though, I suspect, do not feel that strongly one way or the other. They simply take the view that if that is where Marks & Spencer, British Home Stores or Sainsbury's is, that's where they will go.

According to Dudley Council leader, Councillor David Sparks, "Merry Hill enabled Dudley to look Birmingham in the eye," and on that point I really have to disagree.

Dudley cannot, and never has been able to look Birmingham in the eye, certainly not within living memory, and realistically, it is not going to any time soon.

However, Merry Hill is probably the reason why Dudley can no longer look Wolverhampton or Walsall in the eye, either.

And for that I will always be very sad.

WEST Midland clergyman the Rev Alan Fraser, who drives a petrol-electric hybrid vehicle which is exempt from road tax, observes that he still has to go on to the DVLA website to not pay the road tax he does not owe.

He adds: "There is a range of (non) payment options, although I apparently will be charged £2.50 if I decide to not pay by credit card.

"So, if I have understood this, I am to not pay for a tax disc that I now won't get sent."

And if he does not comply, presumably he will be sent a final demand to not pay his road tax.

Museum's mine marks milestone

The Black Country Living Museum coal mine exhibit is 25 years old. CHARLIE BENTON reports

ITS dark, winding tunnels have transported a generation of museum visitors back in time to the subterranean world of the Black Country's mining past.

Now the Black Country Living Museum is celebrating 25 years since its £1 million man-made coal mine exhibit first opened to the public.

Four million visitors have been taken 'into the thick' since November 1989, up to 1,500 a day during peak times.

The Black Country was famous for the Staffordshire Thick Coal, which lay beneath much of the area in seams up to 10 metres thick and the mine exhibit was created to show how miners worked the thick coal and other seams in the Black Country in about 1850.

Maze

The mine itself is a 'drift mine', accessed by walking down a sloping tunnel.

As it comes to an end it splits into a maze of roadways and working areas, recreating the underground conditions as they would have been more than 160 years ago, with the roof coming as low as 1.5 metres in some places.

The mine, which wasn't built until 10 years after the museum itself was first opened, was the brainchild of former director of the museum Ian Walden and was funded entirely by the council and local businesses.

In total, there are over 200 metres worth of tunnels which makes the Into the Thick exhibit one of the largest, if not the largest, replica mine tours in the UK.

Original mine guides Barry Salt, Bryan Harris and Ron Butcher

After originally looking at opening up an old mine, the museum chose to use cement blocks to build a brand new, man-made mine to prevent risks to visitors and minimise flooding.

Despite being unsafe to reopen as an exhibit, the museum has a total of 42 disused mineshafts underneath it. Two of them are preserved at the Racecourse Colliery and Brook Shaft areas of the museum.

Back in the 1800s many of the mines across the Black Country not only endangered their workers, but also those who lived in houses above them, which were slowly 'pit-pulled' down into the empty space below. The museum has an example of the phenomenon on-site in the form of a 'tilted cottage'.

"It's easy to forget the kind of working conditions miners were subjected to," said David Eveleigh, Director of Collections, Learning & Research at the museum. "The mine tour is important because it immerses our visitors into the world of the miner in a way that hearing or reading about it simply can't.

"It is one of the most popular activities on our site for good reason and it especially resonates with children, the group which would have suffered the most at the hands of lax labour laws."

Ken Bradley, chairman of the Friends of the Black Country Museum group, said: "The museum wanted to illustrate how vital mining was to the area and how dangerous that work was.

"The site that the museum is built on actually had many working mines and there were enquiries made as to whether one of them could be used but the idea was turned down by the mine safety people as there were lots of problems with it.

"The director decided that a way around this would be to do a reconstruction mine and that is how it came about."

Mr Bradley said the contractors brought in to construct the mine were also involved with the living history Jorvik Viking attraction in York.

"The contractors at the time made panels out of synthetic materials to simulate the coalface," Mr Bradley said. "But when they were laying them they came across a real coal seam.

"Although they weren't allowed to leave the seam itself open they actually took patterns and remade the panels to look exactly the same."

He added: "My father was a coal miner in a real working mine and stepping into the reconstruction for the first time all those years ago suddenly brought everything back because it is so realistic."

As part of the anniversary celebrations the original tour guides have been invited back to the museum to take a tour themselves to commemorate the milestone.

Bryan Harris, of Gornal, 78, was a mine guide for more than 20 years from the 1989 opening. The former banker decided after he retired that he wanted to do something completely different. He said: "I loved every minute of it."

WEEK IN POLITICS

with Daniel Wainwright

WE need to talk about Europe. I say that knowing full well that for people who follow politics at the moment it seems as though we talk about little else.

But the farcical scenes in the Commons over the European Arrest Warrant show how toxic it is proving to be to the Tories.

Not that we need much more proof of that, of course. The by-election won by a Tory MP-turned-UKIPper and coupled with the likelihood of a repeat in Rochester should have made it abundantly clear by now.

MPs turned up to vote thinking they were going to get a say on the European Arrest Warrant itself. Instead the motion put before them was for just 11 of 35 measures that the coalition government wanted to opt into and the warrant was not one.

The Conservatives would not have wanted to face another rebellion by Eurosceptic backbenchers. But after all these years it should have been abundantly clear to the whips that anything with the word 'Europe' in it is not going to go down well with the likes of Stone's Sir Bill Cash or Aldridge-Brownhills MP Sir Richard Shepherd.

The latter, retiring at the election, made his feelings abundantly clear: "At the heart of this is a misconception about what this House represents... my over long time in this House of Commons has led me to understand the growth of executive arrogance is unsupportable."

Even reading the words one can hear the weariness in his voice. Sir Richard has been an MP since 1979. He's been rebelling on Europe since Maastricht.

Labour's shadow Europe minister is Wolverhampton South East MP Pat McFadden. He said the Tories have a 'psychosis' about the union and pointed out that there was actually more than enough support from the majority of the Tories, Liberal Democrats and Labour to vote the warrant through.

Now Labour has decided to debate and vote on it as part of an Opposition Day on the eve of the Rochester by-election. The thing is a mess. And this is before we have even got to the argument about the warrant itself.

As far as Mr McFadden and Labour are concerned, as well as the Tories in favour of it, is a means by which this country has managed to deport 1,000 foreign criminals in a single year and has resulted in the successful return of people wanted by our own authorities.

The arguments against include concerns over the ability of other EU member states to demand the extradition of British citizens without sufficient evidence.

There are various legal experts, civil liberties groups and others now turning it into a political football. Maybe we should have been worried about it, maybe not. But if they won't even debate it, the Government can't blame people for drawing their own conclusions.

Cloudy2Clear Windows – Service With A Smile!

It's been a crazy few months for Cloudy2Clear Windows. The company which specialises in repairing windows which are steamed up, broken or damaged by replacing the panes – not the frames has grown rapidly as homeowners take advantage of their services.

Managing Director Brian Stanley feels that it's all about service. 'Our product is simple. If your double glazing is misted up we can replace the glass at a fraction of the cost of a new window, in any type of frame, and with a new 5 year guarantee. But it's not just about saving people money, although that obviously helps. Many tradespeople have struggled since last year and I honestly feel that during the good times a minority perhaps didn't focus on customer care as much as they should have done.

We make sure we turn up when we say we will, do the job the customer requires and leave their house as clean as a whistle. I often get comments back from customers on how they really didn't expect that sort of service which, in a way, is very sad for the service industry as a whole.'

Cloudy2Clear service Wolverhampton and the surrounding area and Brian is finding that his approach is a major factor in his success. 'The truth is that it's not just the personal satisfaction that I get from doing a good job but also it makes good business sense. I get a huge amount of business from friends and family of people I've done work for, which just goes to show how much a little bit of effort is appreciated.'

Car race motorist, 26, jailed for six months

A DRIVER has been jailed after racing another motorist on a stretch of dual carriageway at almost 100 mph.

Spectators watched as the Range Rover and VW Golf hurtled along the Black Country Route between Bilston and Ettingshall, a judge heard.

An unmarked police car caught 26-year-old Adam Thomas and the other driver red-handed shortly before midnight on June 29, Wolverhampton Crown Court was told.

Mr Howard Searle, prosecuting, said: "There had been reports of similar incidents and the word had got around. People were gathered to watch at an intersection while the unmarked police car was in the area to ensure that racing did not happen again."

Sirens

It caught up with the two cars after they had completed one lap of the circuit that saw them make 360 degree turns on roundabouts and reach speeds of 95 mph on the dual carriageway that had normal traffic travelling on it, the court heard.

Then the undercover police car activated its lights and siren prompting the Range Rover to pull over but the VW driven by Thomas continued, explained Mr Searle. He was finally persuaded to stop and confessed that he had been going a 'bit fast' but tried to maintain he had not been travelling more than 10 mph above the 50 limit, it was said.

Mr Anthony Eskander, defending, said: "He fully understands the danger of what he did and appreciates that he could have caused injury to himself and other people.""

Thomas from Lowe Avenue, Darlaston, who had a dozen previous convictions for offences that included several motoring offences, admitted dangerous driving and was locked up for six months.The defendant was banned from driving for two years and will have to pass an extended test. A man, alleged to be the other motorist involved in the race, is to face trial.

Close-up on Lord Bilston

Authors Mel Chevannes and Frank Reeves with brother Councillor Bert Turner with Real Labour – the biography of Dennis Turner

A BOOK charting the life of legendary Black Country politician Dennis Turner has been officially launched.

Real Labour launched at St Martin's Church, in his native Bradley. The man who went on to known as Lord Bilston died of cancer this year. The staunch union man was born, raised and educated in Bradley and his brother Bert said the venue was a fitting location for the launch.

Husband and wife team Frank Reeves and Mel Chevannes compiled the book from interviews with Lord Bilston. They also spoke to colleagues, friends and family and an emotional Bert spoke of his pride at the finished work during Saturday's launch.

Bert, a councillor for Bilston East, thanks the biographers for their excellent work in difficult circumstances. He said: "I'm delighted the book has been done and I'm even more delighted by the response of the people."

Money raised from the book will go to Compton Hospice, which cared for Lord Bilston in his final months.

The book charts his Black Country upbringing and his rise through the political ranks.

Language workload can affect exams

HEADLINE -130 languages in city schools. Councillor Phil Page, cabinet minister for education at Wolverhampton City Council says: "The rich diversity of children in our schools and communities provide a strength for Wolverhampton."

Totally agree if all were English speaking, but this is not the case and resources already financially strained are diluted.

Story - Language barrier puts demand on teachers. Councillor Tim Crumpton, cabinet minister for education at Dudley Council describes list of languages as a challenge, but said it was helping teachers develop their skills and experience.

Are they missing the point? Education is about children attending school and receiving the highest possible level of education. Finally - Boss to be quizzed on poor GCSE results. Is Councillor Page unable to recognise the correlation between increasing teachers' workload and poor exam results?

Figures that fail to add up

THE University College London report that says European migrants contributed £20 billion more in taxes in the 11 years from 2000 to 2011 than they received in welfare, is more liberal spin.

Four of those years were before the great East European influx and are thus irrelevant. The vast majority of East Europeans who have come here are semi-skilled or unskilled and taken jobs at lower wages than indigenous British workers.

If they had not come here, the jobs would have been available to British people- Moreover, these Brits would have come off unemployment benefit.

Abortion test case set to fail

A council, left with the expense of supporting these kids, has taken court action to criminalise the offence and claim criminal compensation from the government in order to offset their expense.

The abortion industry are up in arms and say that a woman has the right to do whatever she wants with her own body, irrespective of any damage caused to her unborn child in the process.

In my view this test case, which presumes unborn babies are persons in their own right and therefore can be victims under the Offence Against the Person Act, is doomed to failure. It follows that if this test case should decide that unborn children are presumed to be persons in their own right, then following this principle, the 7,000,000 abortions carried out since 1967 will have to be deemed to be mass murder.

Flats plan is not our choice

TETTENHALL Neighbourhood Plan was recently adopted by Wolverhampton Council after 92 per cent of local people voted in favour. It was designed to give local people a say in planning decisions to ensure future developments reflect what people want.

So after attending an exhibition by McCarthy and Stone, on a proposed development of 22 flats in Stockwell Road, I am at a loss to how this is even being considered due to its size, impact on open spaces and increase in traffic.

After living in Stockwell Road for 25 years, I cannot remember another building of the same density, mass or scale in the road. Secondly, replacing one four-bedroom property with 22 flats will do nothing to improve the open spaces or enhance the conservation area. Thirdly, how will an extra 22 residencies not have an impact on the congested roads?

Fourthly, I am yet to meet any local residents who want this development. So what's the point of a neighbourhood plan?

Expenses cost is outrageous

COULD someone please explain why Wolverhampton council tax payers, helped by central government funding, paid our 61 Wolverhampton councillors a total of £995,873.00 for expenses?

This includes, laughably, if it weren't so outrageous, Mayoral/Deputy Mayoral clothing allowances of £2,500.

As Wolverhampton is in dire financial straits, consideration should be given to immediate and drastic reductions in this area.

I have seen no mention of this whatsoever, but surely these councillors are not all essential.

Wolverhampton is not alone in being financially stretched. I gather that Dudley has 71 councillors whose expense payments are much higher.

I am tired of being told that central government funding cuts are responsible for the current situation. If budgets are to be balanced, consideration must be given to all areas where cuts could be made.

Link-up with Birmingham? No thanks, this is not wanted

UNTIL the 1960s, the Black Country consisted of a number of vibrant community towns, each with its own identity, industry and even unique 'culture'.

Encouraged by successive governments, and undoubtedly with the underlying motivation of 'empire building', the larger towns swallowed the smaller villages and districts.

For want of a better description, they milked them for all they were worth. Communities and community spirits were destroyed as towns such as Wolverhampton grew, with neither attractive personality nor distinguishing characteristics.

The next stage was the development of the 'West Midlands' changing millions of much- loved former addresses for good (remember when, for example, it was Bilston, Staffs?). Now, the next ominous stage; my local MEP tell me that this month in Brussels, our Wolverhampton Council leader was spotted in conference with the leader of Birmingham Council. The agenda? Creation of a Greater Birmingham.

This faceless and unwanted monster is destined to take over Wolverhampton, Dudley, Sandwell, Walsall, Solihull, Sutton Coldfield and so on.

Of course, such a colossal conurbation as favoured by the EU would attract huge financial grants to improve the lives of residents there in. Please pull my other leg! The root objectives are personal ambition, more white elephants, inflated executive salaries and the like.

And of course, we all know by now that when the EU says 'jump' our powerless and useless MPs ask 'how high please?'

Well, I say the plan stinks! Bilston folk still object to the Wolverhampton takeover nearly 50 years ago. Let's tell Brussels, Birmingham and our council – 'no thanks, not wanted!'

Fireworks hit the weather

OVER recent years as anyone else like me noticed a shift in the pattern of the weather at this time of year with more rain, fog and damp cold weather?

Could this have something to do with more bonfires and fireworks creating a blanket of toxic soup into the atmosphere?

When I was growing up bonfire night was on the November 5 only, not over days or weeks as is the case now. Added to this is other festivals such as Diwali 'festival of light', weddings, birthdays throughout the year, any excuse to light up the skies, this adds to the pollution of not only smoke but noise as well.

Knife thug jailed after he punched two men

A KNIFE-wielding thug, who punched two men during a night of violence, has been jailed for 27 months.

The trouble flared when Kamal Lodge punched a man outside the Pear and Partridge pub, Perton, near Wolverhampton.

And it ended when window cleaner Shaun Bayliss was stabbed five times – a crime for which no-one has been convicted – outside the nearby Wrottesley Arms. Last month a jury acquitted Liam Phipps of attempting to murder Mr Bayliss.

However, Stafford Crown Court heard that it was Lodge who started the trouble by arming himself with a kitchen knife and threatening people. Lodge, aged 23, who is from London, admitted charges of assaulting Joey Padley, possessing an offensive weapon and affray.

Chasing

The court heard he punched Mr Padley before going with Mr Phipps to the home of Zoe Cattell, where Lodge got a phone call challenging him to a fight over the attack on Mr Padley.

He left her home armed with a kitchen knife, chasing a man named Alex Bennett before knocking him to the ground with a single punch. A struggle with Mr Bayliss followed during which Mr Bayliss was stabbed, but the judge made it clear that Lodge was not guilty of the stabbing.

After being arrested, Lodge was taken to hospital by police, headbutting an officer and throwing a dish of urine over him.

Mr Paul Lamb, defending, said: "There had been some drinking, he accepts that, and it led to the first incident outside the public house."

Sentencing Lodge to 27 months, Judge Tonking told him: "I make it quite clear that you, Lodge, are not guilty of that stabbing and it cannot be said with any certainty that the knife you took was the knife used to stab Mr Bayliss. But taking that knife was the spark for this violence."

Banking on food support

Helping to launch the Willenhall Food Distribution Project, vice chairman Alan Cooper and secretary Valerie Baker at Queen Lea Centre

A NEW food bank has been launched in the Black Country to help those in need.

Willenhall Food Distribution Project is run independently from Queens Lea Community Rooms and the committee behind it are hoping to make an impact with locals struggling for money to buy food.

Derek Showell, who is chairman of the distribution project, said help would be available to those who needed it every day: "There are a lot of food banks out there doing a great job but if they are open only once a week or once a fortnight, that kind of defeats the object.

"We offer our services on an individual basis, we take the specific requirements of everyone who is referred to us and they can come to us at any time."

People who are referred to the food bank are asked to give details of the number of people in their family and any dietary requirements before volunteers put together their food parcel. They are also asked if they have any pets who would need food and if they are unable to get to the base, drop offs are organised.

Those who want help have to be referred by organisations including Walsall Housing Group.

Relief for landlords of empty properties

COUNCIL-TAX premiums imposed on empty properties could in future be waived if landlords are struggling to let or sell their premises.

By Mark Andrews

Wolverhampton Council will consider dropping the empty property premium – which adds an extra 50 per cent to the standard council tax – where owners prove they are trying to sell or let their buildings.

The changes were approved at a meeting of the cabinet resources panel. The council will assess each case on its merits, before deciding whether to grant full or partial exemptions.

Liable

Cabinet member for finance Councillor Andrew Johnson said: "We would want them to demonstrate they had tried to sell or let the property."

Last year, the council approved a discretionary scheme of discounts and charges relating to empty properties. Owners of properties which have been empty for two years or more are now liable for a charge of an extra 50 per cent on top of standard council tax. However, the panel approved plans to grant exemptions to landlords struggling to find occupants for their properties.

The new guidelines say exemptions might also be granted where the owner experienced technical or legal issues in selling or letting the property, or where the landlord was in negotiation with the council for letting the property under a local authority scheme.

The change in policy comes in response to new government guidelines advising local authorities to consider difficulties in finding occupants.

The meeting also approved measures which would see residents fined £70 for failing to supply their details.

Song for Kiahna is proving a real hit

Andrew Ayres, who has written Kiahna's Song, with Kiahna Taylor-Brummell, 8, and her father Neil

A SONG written about a little girl who has survived five life-threatening operations is proving a huge success – even knocking Barry Manilow off the top of an easy-listening chart.

Kiahna's Song is about Kiahna Taylor-Brummell, 8, daughter of publicans Neil Taylor and Kerry Brummell who run the Fox at Shipley pub, near Pattingham.

Penned by Mr Taylor's friends, Andrew Ayres and Steph Burgess, from Stoke, the song has exceeded all expectations. And now the people behind it are aiming for the top 40, with money raised going to Birmingham Children's Hospital.

The song celebrates the youngster's courage and determination and tells the story of a parent's anxious wait for their child to return from theatre and a critical operation.

Mr Taylor, 44, said he was overwhelmed with the success of the song, which can regularly be heard playing at the pub. The song was released earlier this month and has also reached number 53 in the US easy listening download chart, as well as topping the same UK chart.

Drug plot sweet-talking ex-con back behind bars

A SWEET-TALKING ex-con who tempted a jail worker into smuggling drugs into Featherstone Prison is back behind bars.

Andrelle Leedham faces a long sentence after masterminding the plot.

Lovestruck warder Hannah Stewart, 27, fell for the 26-year-old father-of-one while he was in the jail for blackmail, Stafford Crown Court heard. The pair met in the education department where Stewart was an operational support officer.

Prosecutor Mr Gerard Quirke said: "He showed her a lot of attention."

Recorder Peter Cooke said he believed the lovers had sexual relations in the prison. Stewart had maintained they were not intimate until after Leedham was released in August last year. The relationship fizzled out within a couple of months but they remained in contact and the defendant hatched the drug plot by text message.

Phones

He arranged for her to take a sports bag containing cannabis, 700 anabolic steroid tablets, eight bottles of spirits and seven mobile phones into the jail but an inmate was caught with the bag.

Stewart from Oaks Drive, Featherstone, whose father and brother have both been prison officers at the jail, has admitted her involvement in the drug plot and misconduct in a public office. She is awaiting sentence. Her father worked at the jail but knew nothing of it.

A jury unanimously found Leedham guilty of conspiring to supply cannabis and anabolic steroids and conspiracy to convey prohibited articles into HMP Featherstone.

Recorder Cooke said: "He inveigled his way into her affections and was manipulative. Leedham was the prime mover and was certainly pulling the strings."

Leedham, whose home address is Thompson Avenue, Blakenhall, Wolverhampton, was remanded in custody and will be sentenced with the two inmates also involved in the plot.

Serving up city sushi first

Iso Sushi head chef Dorjee Sherpa, from Wolverhampton, with some of the food on offer at the new restaurant in Chapel Ash

AN authentic taste of Japanese cuisine has arrived in Wolverhampton with the opening of the city's first sushi restaurant.

ISO Sushi has opened on Tettenhall Road, Chapel Ash, at the site of the former Rumbles takeaway.

Bosses have spent four months working on a plush £40,000 refurbishment of the building, with a large rear extension allowing the restaurant to serve up to 40 customers at full capacity.

On opening night, head chef Dorjee Sherpa served up traditional sushi classics like Katsu Bento, Nigiri and sumptuous handrolls along with hot dishes including Yakisoba and Teriyaki.

The event was attended by the Mayor of Wolverhampton, Councillor Mike Heap, who cut the ribbon before the first meals were served. Over the course of the weekend, more than 100 customers were welcomed through the doors.

Sadness as entertainment centre Quest due to close

MERRY Hill bosses have spoken of their sadness at the planned closure of the Quest entertainment centre just two years after it opened.

Paragon Entertainment has announced the loss-making venture will shut in six months.

Mike Butterworth, chief operating officer of Merry Hill's owner Intu, said: "We have seen Paragon Entertainment's statement about Quest serving notice on its space. We are sorry it's closing but respect the decision taken by Paragon Entertainment."

The £1.3 million children's attraction failed over the last two years to deliver the huge number of visitors hoped for. The entertainment zone, which opened in November 2012, saw the atrium at one of the centre's main entrances converted into an exciting indoor 14-metre high wire area. Initially Paragon Entertainment, which has created visitor attractions like Titanic Belfast, the Wallace and Gromit ride at Blackpool Pleasure and the official Olympic Museum in Switzerland, operated an outdoor ice rink as well.

The first two months saw 15,000 people using Quest with the ice rink proving a hit, but despite many new attractions for children from under-two upwards being added since including a Nerf blaster combat zone in a giant tented area and an indoor mini golf course and soft play area in the former Harry Ramsden's restaurant area, it had failed to generate an operating profit.

The company said last year that one of the reasons for the poor performance was its location in the centre and good summer weather had also seen a fall in numbers.

Badger pledge on crematorium plan

THE man behind plans for a crematorium in Perton has said badgers will be protected, after concerns from conservationists.

Billy Wilson, who runs the Tough Guy assault course, wants to build a £4 million crematorium inside a forest in Jenny Walkers Lane, Perton.

But Staffordshire Badger Conservation Group said it wanted an ecological survey to assess the impact on badgers in the area.

Mr Wilson said he has commissioned a study and added: "We have a two acre hillside especially fenced off for over 250 Badgers who live above Sling Wood in a special badger conservation area. I have 20 years ago built a well- constructed hide in the middle for anyone to come and observe."

The site would create around 12 jobs and hold services Monday to Friday. Plans include a chapel with a congregation capacity of around 90. There would be two cremators, a book of remembrance room, public waiting room and entrance foyer and administration offices. Similar proposals near Tettenhall and Essington have emerged.

Shoplifter funded his addiction to gambling

A PROLIFIC shoplifter with a 'dreadful' record stole £4,500 worth of tools and electronics from stores across the country to fund his gambling addiction.

Kristofer Davies, from Bilston, has been put behind bars for a year for the crime spree following his 17th appearance in court for theft and dishonesty.

He was caught with accomplice Robert Morris, also from Wolverhampton, when their theft of nine Makita tools worth more than £1,000 from Wickes in Gloucester was thwarted by police stopping them as they made their getaway on the M5.

Fence

He pleaded guilty to stealing 17 Makita power tools worth a total of £3,216 from Wickes in Winsford, Cheshire, in January, as well as a £300 camera from Staples in Banbury in February and just over £1,000 worth of tools from Wickes, Gloucester, in March.

Davies, aged 27 of Slim Avenue, had also been committed for sentence by Wolverhampton Magistrates Court for a further theft of tools, committed while on bail, at Travis Perkins in Dudley on July 16.

Prosecutor Edward Hetherington said a silver BMW was used in the Cheshire, Banbury and Gloucester thefts.

After the final raid, staff found a freshly-cut hole in the wire fence and police soon picked Davies and Morris up in the BMW on the M5 northbound, with the loot found in the car.

By Tim Spiers

Makkan Singh Shoker, for Davies, said he committed the offences after developing a gambling addiction following the break up of a six-year relationship with the mother of his daughter.

Mr Shoker disputed that the thefts were professional, saying Davies had been caught on CCTV at all the shops and had left his DNA and fingerprints at one of them.

Davies now had a new relationship and had curbed his gambling, he said.

Judge William Hart told Davies: "This was professional offending, targeting high value goods, amounting in value overall to £4,500 and you are a man with a dreadful record."

Morris, aged 52 and of Selwyn Road, Bilston, who admitted the Gloucester offence and had 32 previous convictions, was sentenced to a 12-month community order with a requirement to do 180 hours of unpaid work.

Police mental health scheme is extended

A WEST Midlands Police mental health scheme has been expanded into the Black Country.

The initiative sees police officers crewed with psychiatric nurses and paramedics on a dedicated response vehicle to answer calls involving people believed to be experiencing mental ill health. It started in January as a pilot project covering Birmingham and Solihull but coverage now spans the entire West Midlands region.

Chief Inspector Sean Russell said: "The initiative has been hugely successful primarily because it means medical experts, rather than police officers, are on hand to carry out assessments on individuals at the scene.

"It's resulted in a dramatic drop in the number of people deemed necessary to detain under the Mental Health Act, whilst those judged to be in need of help are now being taken to safe health facilities instead of police cells.

The scheme aims to provide on-the-spot assessments.

MEMORY LANE

By Alec Brew

AT 11 am on November 11, 1918 the guns fell silent across the world.

They were firing right up to the last second, as many of the gunners wanted to claim that they had fired the last shot in the 'War to End all Wars'.

Then began the process of returning the millions of men and women, but mostly men to their homes, where many expected to return to their old jobs, supplanting the women who had taken their place; but things were not as simple as that.

Wolverhampton, and the Black Country in general, were geared up for war, turning out munitions, warplanes, guns, and all the paraphenalia of the modern conflict.

Orders were cancelled, though production of, now unwanted items, continued into 1919.

Companies had to find new products to turn their skills to. Wolverhampton was well served in the new motorised age with many vehicle manufacturers, who thought they could return to car and motor-bike production and find a ready market with the returning servicemen, many of whom had become well used to motor vehicles during the four years of conflict.

Dominated

Sunbeam returned their car production from Rover in Coventry but still hoped to make a large business in the production of aero-engines, which had dominated the Villiers Street factories during the war.

They were to find that the competition from Rolls-Royce in particular and from cheap war-surplus engines was too much, and they hardly sold an aircraft engine after the war.

Round the corner Star returned to car production, but were never able to sell enough from their confined factories to sustain the business, and firstly their Briton division and then Star itself went to the wall, and Edward Lisle, founder of the company took his life.

Guy returned to making trucks, and became hugely successful.

Other companies were also to find ready markets for their metal-bashing skills, making locks, bicycles, ploughshares, and all the nuts and bolts to put them together.

Elsewhere servicemen returned to quieter lives, opening shops, starting their own businesses, often with the skills they had learned in the Army, and looked forward to re-building their lives.

£25m science block opens up

A NEW £25 million science block at the University of Wolverhampton has officially opened to students.

The ground and first floors of the block in Stafford Street are now open.

The old 1960s teaching building has been refurbished and extended both upward and outward and features state-of-the-art facilities for 2,500 students and 150 Faculty of Science and Engineering staff.

Professor Geoff Layer, the university's vice-chancellor, said the £25m facility was a 'real statement'.

He said: "This is a fantastic facility and we are delighted to have opened the first phase.

"It is a real statement and investment in science by the university and provides first rate labs for our students to learn in.

"Not only that but now we have an outreach lab available so we can engage with local schools."

Owzat? Ex-bank chief Mervyn now president of cricket club

FORMER Governor of the Bank of England and ex-Wolverhampton schoolboy Mervyn King has been appointed the president of Worcestershire County Cricket Club.

Lord King, a former pupil of Wolverhampton Grammar School, will be president for the club's 150th anniversary celebrations next year.

The son of a Gornal headmaster, Lord King grew up in Canterbury Road, Penn, and is a lifelong fan of the club. Outgoing president John Elliott, praised the appointment as "a wonderful decision and a great name to be associated with the cricket club."

Lord King's support for the Pears goes back to their first County Championship title triumph in 1964.

He said he was keen to play an active role in Worcestershire's landmark year, and predicted exciting times ahead with the major redevelopment of New Road in the past decade and the young, talented squad which has earned promotion to Division One in the Championship.

Former Worcestershire wicket-keeper Elliott, who also spent eight years as club chairman, added: "He is a very passionate supporter of Worcestershire. He will be around on the cricket circuit as well and is going to help with our fund-raising for the 150th anniversary year.

"It's a great name to have associated with the club."

Lord King said, who is also an avid Aston Villa supporter, said the appointment was a great honour.

"My youth was spent at New Road watching the first Worcestershire side win the county championship 50 years ago. With the 150th anniversary next year, there is much to celebrate in our history. The future is even brighter."

Tax summaries welcome – MP

PLANS to issue taxpayers with personal summaries will allow them to understand better how their money is being spent, an MP has said.

South Staffordshire MP Gavin Williamson welcomed the announcement that from this week more than 24 million taxpayers across the UK will receive details of how much direct tax they pay, and how it is spent by the Government.

Mr Williamson said: "We believe taxpayers deserve to know how the Government spends the money they have earned and paid in taxes.

"These new personal tax summaries will deliver exactly that, letting many taxpayers in South Staffordshire find out how much direct tax they're paying and what it's being spent on. This will mean fairer taxes for everyone, with taxpayers able to hold politicians to account."

Chloe beats bullies and picks up gold

Double gold medal winner Chloe Machin

WHEN Chloe Machin took up karate as a way of overcoming bullying, she never imagined that she'd end up as a double gold medal winner.

Four years after she started, the16-year-old represented England at the European Wado Kai Championships in Reading and came back a winner in both the singles and the team games. She said: "It's amazing to represent England. In a way, it doesn't feel real."

Chloe, who lives in Beechdale, Walsall, trains at least twice a week at Mushindo Wado-Kai, Bilston. She also studies personal training at Walsall College. Her proud mother, Jackie, said: "She loves karate – she lives and breathes it."

Not resting on her laurels, Chloe is already training for the world championships in Japan next year, and hopes to go on to train the next generation of gold medal winners.

"I want to make this my life," she added. Her trainer, Vince Parker said: "She's a very young spirited competitor that wants to do well. That's really important in a sport like karate. Considering her age, she's got her head screwed on, and that's going to do her well in the future.

Suburb drugs blitz by police is praised

A POLICE sergeant has praised work done by officers during a month-long operation aimed at tackling crime in a Wolverhampton suburb.

In a crackdown around Whitmore Reans, officers from the local neighbourhood policing team, supported by other Wolverhampton police teams as well as dogs and traffic units, arrested 12 people, seized large quantities of Class A drugs, recovered hundreds of thousands of pounds in cash and took three vehicles suspected of transporting drugs off the road.

Sergeant Kevin Whitehouse, who led the police activity, said: "We're pleased the operation, which provided a raised level of policing within the community to make the area uncomfortable and unattractive for both drug users and dealers, was able to achieve its intended aim.

"This operation forms part of our long-term plan to tackle drug-related criminality in the area."

.Players Aaron McCarey, Leon Clarke and Ethan Ebanks Landell with Brother Stephen who runs soup kitchen

Leon Clarke, Ethan Ebanks-Landell and Aaron McCarey served food at Darlington Street Methodist Church.

The kitchen welcomes up to 300 people and relies on donations from people, businesses, shops and restaurants.

The Wolves players donned aprons and gloves and helped dish out soup and other main meals at the city centre church. Brother Steven Brennan, one of the managers at the Good Shepherd Ministries project, said everyone was delighted to welcome the players.

Brother Steven said they were always on the lookout for volunteers and donations.

They serve soup, pizza, quiche, cakes, tea and coffee, and whatever else has been donated. The soup kitchen runs on Thursdays and Saturdays at 2pm.

Judge orders return of flat

A JUDGE has ordered that a council flat be handed back because it was being illegally rented out.

Jagdish Singh from Willenhall attempted to buy the Wolverhampton council flat but has now been ordered to give it back to the city council.

He also has to pay £3,000 in costs.

An investigation by fraud experts at Wolverhampton Homes found that Singh, aged 45, tried to buy the flat despite illegally subletting it. Singh had been a Wolverhampton Homes tenant at a property in Rooker Avenue in Parkfields, and in 2013 made an application to buy the house from the council under the Right To Buy legislation.

But Singh's mortgage application stated he'd lived in an address in Willenhall for the past seven years.

In interviews Singh, of Tobruck Walk in Willenhall, denied any wrongdoing, but further investigations found that he'd been illegally sub-letting the council property to other people.

Walsall County Court found Mr Singh was in breach of ground 1 of Schedule 2 to the Housing Act 1985 and ordered that the property in Rooker Avenue be handed back to the council and that he pay costs of more than £3,000.

Mark Henderson, director of housing at Wolverhampton Homes said it was an issue that the organisation was keen to crack down on. He said: "Tenancy fraud is illegal; it's not fair on others and is something which we take very seriously. We're pleased that the court has dealt with this."

Just 125 have say on gipsy pitches

JUST 125 people have had a say so far over plans for new gipsy settlements across South Staffordshire.

Residents in the area are now being asked to put forward their views on the proposals.

By law South Staffordshire Council must find 33 new pitches across the region by 2028 as part of a commitment to cater for the housing needs of all members of the community.

A total of 29 sites containing 166 pitches have been put forward by landowners for consideration, in areas including Shareshill, Coven Heath, Bilbrook, Seisdon and Essington. A consultation was launched last month to collect views on the prospective sites.

But after receiving just 125 responses so far, council bosses have made renewed calls for views. Councillor Bob McCardle, South Staffordshire Council's cabinet member for strategic services, said: "The responses we get from the public will have a direct influence on the final decision."

Last week South Staffordshire MP Gavin Williamson vowed to support Essington Parish Council's fight to stop any new sites in the village. The MP is campaigning to reduce the number of pitches in his constituency and has urged ministers to change planning laws.

He branded proposals for three new pitches in Essington as 'disgraceful'.

Thanks Bill, you're a real Sheargold lifesaver

A MAN who lay dead for more than 10 minutes having suffering a heart attack after playing squash has been reunited with the quick-thinking leisure centre staff who brought him back to life.

Dave Penza, aged 65, collapsed on court at Bert Williams Leisure Centre in Bilston and went into cardiac arrest at the end of his weekly match against his close friend Stan Mann.

But three staff at the centre – including Bill Sheargold who he had known for more than 25 years – bravely came to his aid, performing CPR and using a defibrillator to restart his heart.

At an emotional reunion at the centre on Nettlefolds Way, Bilston, Mr Penza came face to face with the three people who saved his life for the first time since the incident on September 17.

Recollection

He said: "Words cannot describe how I feel about these people. I was just so fortunate to have them around at the time.

"What they did has given me real faith in human nature. My recollection was zero from the time I collapsed until a week later, but the staff dealt with the situation. It must have been very traumatic for them"

The drama unfolded at around 7.40pm when Mr Penza collapsed suddenly shortly after he had finished playing squash. Centre manager Bill Sheargold, aged 55, came to his aid and immediately started CPR.

He was joined by lifeguard Laura Guest, 20, who dashed hundreds of metres to get the centre's defibrillator and swimming teacher Chris Peake, 31, who performed rescue breaths and assisted with CPR.

Dave Penza with Duty Officer Bill Sheargold who saved his life

After three shocks from the defibrillator Mr Penza started to breath again. He received further treatment from paramedics who arrived 15 minutes after his initial collapse and was taken to New Cross Hospital.

Mr Sheargold, who used to play in the same squash league as Mr Penza in the late 1980s, said: "There was a real gasp of relief from all of us when Dave started breathing again.

"Thankfully this type of thing does not happen everyday.

"The team were fantastic and I'm grateful everything turned out well."

Mr Penza, a self-employed quantity surveyor, is now recovering at home in Wednesfield.

He said: "I'm feeling well in myself but I'm under strict doctors orders not to do anything strenuous until they have seen me again next month.

"The squash is definitely taking a back seat for the time being!"

£10k store boost sets new record

MORE than £10,000 has been raised by a Royal British Legion branch from a collection at a Wombourne supermarket.

Members of the Swindon and Smestow branch of the legion have been collecting at Sainsbury's and broke the store record.

The Remembrance Day collection yielded £11,000 in total and with more still to come from door-to-door collections and those at shops, schools and factories, members hope to beat their previous record total of £14,000 collected back in 2011.

Organisers Terry and Rita Herrington said: "The fantastic display of poppies at the Tower of London and the publicity it has generated has definitely helped us, but also the assistance from the management and staff of Sainsbury's has been invaluable."

Festive treat for soul fans

THERE'S a real festive treat awaiting soul and motown fans with the Christmas soul party at Wombourne Civic Centre on Saturday, December 20.

The Mirwood Enterprise event will feature DJs, including Dave Thomas, spinning all the favourites.

Tickets (£6) are available from Goulds at Sedgley, Hi Lites, Wombourne, Gi Gi's of Kingswinford or call 07793 282891. Tables can be reserved for groups of 10 or more.

Plea after gas cylinders found dumped on path

GAS cylinders have been found dumped on a bridlepath. Environment officers from Wombourne found the cylinders along a path off the Bridgnorth Road in Wombourne.

Of the 56 cylinders found, three were full of a toxic gas called chlorodifluoromethane, normally used in refrigeration. Damaged valves on all three cylinders prompted fears they could have leaked the gas into the atmosphere.

Inhaling chlorodifluoromethane can irritate the nose, throat and lungs, causing tightness in the chest and difficulty with breathing.

Dangerous

Environmental officers from South Staffordshire Council are appealing for information on where the cylinders may have come from and who was responsible for dumping them along the bridle path.

Councillor Roger Lees, cabinet member for public health protection, said: "As a rural district, some think they can fly tip here without being caught.

"This is not the case; we will not tolerate criminals destroying our beautiful area. We are sure many local people feel the same, which is why we are asking for their help in finding out who dumped these cylinders.

"We are keen to speak to anyone who knows where they have come from, or anyone who witnessed the cylinders being dumped and can give us some more information.

"Fly tipping damages the countryside, and this instance of fly tipping was particularly dangerous because of the substances involved."

There were more than 350 reports of fly tipping last year in Staffordshire costing tens of thousands of pounds to clean up. A number of people have been fined in separate incidents this year for dumping items such as household waste and an old sofa.

Those with any information on the cylinders should call South Staffordshire Council on 01902 696200.

Information appeal – 56 gas cylinders were illegally dumped on a bridle path off Bridgnorth Road

Refurbed pub is due to reopen

A REFURBISHMENT of an historic Wombourne pub will bring new jobs to the area.

The Vine, in High Street, closed its doors recently and it due to reopen under new management tomorrow.

The historic country pub and restaurant – thought to have originally opened in 1851 – has undergone a series of internal changes, including a refreshed restaurant area.

The Vine will retain its food menu. New general manager Ron Brazier said: "Our guests have come to know and love our unique offer here at The Vine. We're excited to lovingly restore our pub and restaurant areas to complement our great food, great service and great atmosphere."

The Vine will bring eight new jobs to the area including front-of-house staff.

Bazzaar to aid church

WOMBOURNE Methodist Church is to hold its Christmas bazaar at the community centre on Saturday from 10am-noon.

It will be opened by South Staffordshire MP Gavin Williamson. On offer are home-made cakes and jams, hand-made cards and Christmas gifts and nearly-new clothes.

Toys, books and games will be on sale alongside face painting and refreshments. Entry is 30p and proceeds will got to church.

Chris Watson with colleagues Michelle Turton and Leanne Allen

Water campaigner to check out slums

A WOMAN is travelling over to Uganda this week to visit slums and find out what life is like for communities who do not have clean water.

Chris Watson, an education co-ordinator for South Staffs Water in Walsall, was due to fly out to Africa yesterday with the international development charity WaterAid.

Mrs Watson was chosen to represent the company, based in Green Lane, on the week-long trip along with fundraisers from 13 other water companies.

During her time over there she will be meeting communities to find out what life is like without safe water and toilets and visit WaterAid projects in both urban slums and rural villages to see how the money raised by South Staffs Water employees is making a difference.

Mrs Watson said: "Clean water and toilets are things we take for granted here in the UK but for some people they're a luxury. Just imagine if we couldn't turn on the tap, go to the loo, have a shower, wash our children – they have no choice but to use whatever water they can find. That very water could make them ill, or could cause a fatal sickness.

"WaterAid's projects bring so much more than just safe water and toilets. Access to basic facilities improves health, enables children to stay in education and frees-up time for people to start earning a living.

Inspire

"This trip is a chance for me to see all of this for myself. I hope to use my experiences to inspire even more people to get involved once I get back."

WaterAid estimates that only 37 per cent of the population of Uganda has adequate sanitation and 12,000 children under the age of five die every year as a result.

As part of the trip to the Amuria District of Uganda, Mrs Watson will spend time in a remote village with a local family living without clean water and a toilet to learn first-hand about the daily challenges for survival they face.

Awards recognise our sporting heroes

SOME of the region's most dedicated and driven athletes and volunteers have been recognised for their sporting efforts at an inspirational ceremony.

The winners, announced at The Light House Media Centre in Wolverhampton, were picked from a shortlist of 39 athletes, coaches and sports clubs drawn from over 100 nominations.

Organised by the Black Country BeActive, this year's event was supported by the Express & Star, the University of Wolverhampton, Radio WM and Wolves Community Trust.

Andy Webb, BeActive Black Country partnership director, said: "We all know the Black Country has a proud sporting heritage, with many world and Olympic medallists coming from the area.

Heritage

"Many of these people, such as Denise Lewis or even Kristian Thomas, started out in clubs around here that have been recognised all over the world as great sporting institutions.

"We will never forget our heritage but now we are seeing the start of a new era we can all be tremendously proud of. We are now not just producing world-class athletes but world-leading athletes, who are setting the targets for others to catch up with.

"If the Black Country actually was a country it would have finished eighth in this year's Commonwealth Games, which shows the wealth of talent we have."

Special guest speaker for the evening was former professional football referee Howard Webb.

Kristian's award topped off a remarkable 12 months in which he also won bronze at the European Gymnastics Championships while Young Sportsperson of the Year Bobbie Butters is hoping that the award she received is just the start of a long and glowing career.

Moment shop assistant fought off knife raider

Shafqat Hussain was working alone in the Murco petrol station in Warstones Road, when two armed men burst through the doors and demanded cash.

One image shows Mr Hussain, who was 24 at the time of the raid on October 22, 2012, fending off one of the raiders who was armed with a knife. He was slashed across the hand and also received injuries to his neck as a result of the attack. Other CCTV footage shows the other robber, who was brandishing a machete, stealing £485 from the till while the scuffle took place.

Getaway

The heavily-disguised robbers, neither of whom have ever been traced, can be seen entering the station's shop separately at 10.23pm. Eight minutes earlier James Jameson, aged 28, of Buckley Road, Warstones is shown on the station forecourt about to enter the store to check the place out. He was found guilty of robbery after a trial at Wolverhampton Crown Court and jailed for six years and three months.

The raiders made their getaway in a white Citroen Saxo which had been parked in a neighbouring road. It was driven by Marlon Watson, also 28, of no fixed address, who admitted the same charge and was locked up for 39 months. The car had been jointly bought by Watson and Jameson three days before the raid.

Carillion seals £800m deal

WOLVERHAMPTON-BASED construction giant Carillion has sealed a deal with Sunderland City Council for a regeneration programme worth up to £800 million.

Following the financial close of the deal work is set to get under way to redevelop key sites across the city over the next 20 years.

Carillion was selected as the preferred bidder to be the strategic partner for Sunderland a year ago, and the terms of the joint venture project – called Siglion – have now been agreed.

The deal represents a major UK project for Carillion, which employs around 600 of its 40,000-strong international workforce in Wolverhampton.

Carillion chief executive, Richard Howson, said: "We are delighted to have achieved financial close on this major innovative programme.

"I believe our success reflects Carillion's ability to offer solutions tailored to the specific needs of our customers."

Shoppers take lead in helping dogs

Alv Biggs, community champion for Tesco, Hayley Gee with Effie (Sunnyside) and Tesco's Tom Archer

GENEROUS customers at a supermarket donated a trolley full of goodies for homeless pets that are being cared for at a dogs' home.

Shoppers at the Tesco in Owen Road, Willenhall, have been taking part in an ongoing project in aid of the animals at Sunnyside kennels, in Coven.

Their efforts have impressed store bosses who, not to be outdone, have also offered the home a trolley load of tennis balls for the dogs to play with. The store's deputy manager, Tom Archer, has praised shoppers for their generosity. The items have been presented to Sunnyside kennels staff. Mr Archer said: "We have a kennel in the store for the customers to put items into for the home. They just pop tins and packets of food in it.

"The people of Willenhall are very generous when it comes to giving to good causes."

Fines risk for landlords

PRIVATE landlords across the Black Country will face fines of up to £3,000 from December 1 if they fail to check on the immigration status of their new tenants.

The Home Office has launched the 'right to rent' scheme, which is being rolled out gradually, being introduced first across the two areas.

The scheme is part of a drive to identify illegal immigrants and to deny them access to public services they are not entitled to. A new official code of practice for landlords asks that the immigration status of everyone who is to occupy a new tenancy is checked. Only those well known to a landlord will be exempt.

The Home Office is providing a landlord checking service which will respond within two working days to enquiries to confirm the status of those people that have outstanding immigration applications or appeals.

From December 1 landlords will be required to request evidence of a person's identity and citizenship, such as a passport or a biometric residence permit. Copies of the documents will have to be taken and kept for 12 months after the tenancy has ended. Under 18s will be exempt.

The measure is part of a package in the 2014 Immigration Act, which also introduces powers to revoke driving licences of illegal migrants, places a stronger duty on registrars to report sham marriages and streamlines the recovery of fines levied on companies for employing illegal immigrants.

Families happier to spend on Christmas

BIG-HEARTED Wolverhampton people are expected to be among the top 10 biggest spenders in the UK this Christmas, according to a new report.

Research findings suggest city folk plan to spend an average of £502.99 on the festive season, forking out more than £30 per gift and buying an average of 11 presents each.

And the mood is set to be jollier, with four out of five people in Wolverhampton saying they're heading into the festive season feeling more positive about the coming year than at any point in the past decade.

As a result of this upturn, households in Wolverhampton will be spending £146.34 more than last year. This festive cheer across Britain will also give the economy a welcome boost of £13 million. These findings have been revealed today in a new consumer spending index which was conducted by Travelodge.

When it comes to the meal year, households in Wolverhampton are spending £106.11 this year, which is less than last year, when the average Christmas dinner cost £158.13. Nearly half of respondents in Wolverhampton (46 per cent) stated they would be buying their holiday food and drink from a value supermarket.

The index revealed that 52 per cent of people in Wolverhampton will be travelling to spend their holidays with family and friends.

Rest assured that all existing customers will receive the quality and service that we have been proud to supply within House Of Fraser, giving you more flexibility with opening hours to suit you.

Delight at opening of the extra classrooms

EXTRA classrooms at a Wolverhampton school have been officially opened.

Four additional classrooms have been added to Bilston CE Primary School to cope with demand for places, after the school roll grew from 210 pupils to 315.

New toilet facilities, breakout spaces and improvements to the playground and car ark were also completed as part of the project, which is part of Wolverhampton City Council's Primary School Expansion Programme.

A further expansion to meet the projected growth in pupil numbers across the city is proposed next year to bring the total number of pupils at the Albany Crescent school to 420.

Improve

Headteacher Gary Gentle said: "Children, staff and governors of the school are delighted with the improved accommodation and facilities which we now enjoy. It will help in our aim to improve academic standards for all our children and provide the best possible education we can.

"As a faith school, serving a multi-cultural community, we take pride in promoting values which we feel prepare our children to live in modern day Britain." Mr Gentle said they were delighted to welcome The Right Rev Clive Gregory, Bishop of Wolverhampton, to officially open the new school buildings.

The council's cabinet member for schools, skills and learning, Councillor Phil Page, said the expansion programme is an excellent scheme, and he is delighted that pupils and teachers at the Bilston school are enjoying their new facilities.

Councillor Page said: "We are working hard to provide the best possible learning environments for our young people – learning environments which both meet the requirements of pupils and teachers."

Classy finish as charity trek teacher checks in

Mr Escritt was joined by Commonwealth gold medallist Hugh Porter and Colton Hills Community School headteacher Alberto Otero for the final leg of his 110-mile journey.

Mr Escritt, who teaches maths at the school in Jeremy Road, Wolverhampton, was also greeted by Olympic gold swimmer Anita Lonsbrough and former England women's cricket captain Rachael Heyhoe-Flint as he made it past the finishing line.

Reverse

Mr Escritt,who is 57, had cycled his way from the Gelliwig residential centre in the Welsh town, a reverse route of the journey he did 25 years ago when Gelliwig was first opened.

He said: "It was easier now than it was in 1989. I've done far more cycling in the years since."

Mr Porter and Mr Otero joined him for the final part of the journey, meeting him in Tong, near Albrighton.

Travel was made all the more difficult by headwinds which blew against Mr Escritt across the Welsh mountains.

"It was very misty, very wet, but I never let it put me off," he added.

Mr Porter said he was in awe of Pete's fitness.

"It was a sterling effort, especially in those conditions, and I was happy to be on the team for that last hour."

Gelliwig was opened in 1989 in memory of Graham Birch and John Thompson, two Wolverhampton teachers who died of heart attacks within weeks of one another.

Welcome back for Hugh Porter, Pete Escott and Alberto Otero

WILLENHALL'S main post office has been saved from the axe.

Post Office bosses announced that they had dropped the proposals for the John Street branch, which has faced an uncertain future for almost two years. It will instead be modernised, with work taking place next year.

Plans to franchise 70 crown post offices were unveiled last year in a bid to help the service cope with £40 million-a-year losses. Post Office bosses have announced they have been unable to find a suitable partner for the Willenhall branch and have stopped their search.

Bosses said the branch will remain under Post Office management and will be modernised.

It will join more than 3,500 branches across the UK that have already been modernised, with many offering extended opening hours.

The Post Office is currently making a multi-million pound investment programme across its branch network.

Fitting way to train for jobs

SPORTS students from City of Wolverhampton College are taking on the role of training providers, helping jobseekers complete an employability programme.

The college's Level 3 Personal Training students are passing their knowledge on to jobseekers in a new training programme called FIT2succeed, a 10-week employability programme run in partnership with the Jobcentre.

The programme, in which students gain their Fitness Instructor Level 2 Certificate, is designed to help unemployed people gain the skills they need to find work in the fitness industry.

They will be inducted into a gym environment, with personal training students introducing kit, training methods, and health and safety protocol.

How support is helping to cut dependence on alcohol

AROUND a third of criminals receiving treatment for alcohol dependence in Staffordshire and the West Midlands have been become abstinent, it has been claimed.

Meanwhile, screening of service users suggests that possible alcohol dependence fell from over 90 per cent at the start of treatment, to under 40 per cent at the end.

Alcohol Treatment Requirements, which can form part of a community sentence handed out by courts, are for criminals who are dependent on alcohol. ATRs offer specialist treatment to reduce offenders' alcohol intake to safe limits, or become abstinent from alcohol.

According to the charity Drinkaware: "The NHS estimates that around nine per cent of men in the UK and four per cent of women show some signs of alcohol dependence.

"This means that drinking alcohol becomes an important, or sometimes the most important, factor in their life and they feel unable to function without it. Psychological dependence can include sharing a bottle of wine with your partner most nights of the week, or always going for a few pints after work to unwind. Physical dependence is when the body shows withdrawal symptoms, such as sweating, shaking, nausea, when your blood alcohol levels fall."

Probation services for low to medium risk criminals in Staffordshire & West Midlands are run by the SWM Community Rehabilitation Company. It works with a range of partner agencies to deliver interventions like ATRs and treatment for other drug dependency.

During 2012-13, 279 offenders in Staffordshire and the West Midlands were subject to an ATR.

When music was the food of love

Golden celebration for Roger and Catherine Bennion

THEIR love affair began in 1959 when they shared their first dance at the Civic Hall to the music of Latin American singer Edmundo Ross.

Now 55 years later Roger, 75, and Catherine Bennion , 73, are celebrating half a century of marriage.

"It's been a happy marriage," said Mrs Bennion. She said she was not sure what the secret to their long and happy marriage was but added: "We're like chalk and cheese in a lot of things."

The pair were introduced to each other through Roger's mother and fast forward five years they tied the knot on October 17, 1964, at Holy Trinity Church in Heath Town, Wolverhampton.

Describing themselves as 'big Wolves supporters,' some of the couple's fondest memories include cheering on the Wanderers at football matches.

Before retiring Roger worked as a drawing office manager at ECC and Catherine worked for social services.

Burden of care is falling on women

WOMEN in the West Midlands are pushing themselves to breaking point by shouldering the burden of care for relatives because of feelings of duty and guilt, according to new figures.

New research from Bupa shows that a 'sense of duty' is causing women to delay important decisions about care for older relatives, resulting in a knock-on effect on their relationships and even their own health.

Nearly two thirds (64 per cent) of women in the West Midlands would put off thinking about a care home as they feel it is 'their duty' to look after their family, yet one in three (33 per cent) say that caring for relatives has led to a strain in their relationship.

It means that care decisions are being left to the last minute and women in the West Midlands are pushing themselves to breaking point with the burden of care, with one third (33 per cent) saying it has hit their own health.

Childhood sweethearts enjoy golden moment

Cheers! Bob and June Tolley celebrate their golden wedding at their home in Stafford Road, Wolverhampton

THEY were childhood sweethearts who met at a family wedding. Now Wolverhampton couple Bob and June Tolley have celebrated 50 years of marriage.

Mr Tolley, 73 and his 71-year-old wife held a party at the Pavilion restaurant with more than 150 friends and relations from across the country.

The couple, of Stafford Road in Oxley, first met when they attended a family wedding, as Bob's brother, Reg, married June's cousin, Joyce.

June remembers: "It was a bit of a coincidence really. He was 16 and I was 14. We talked a bit, but we didn't start going out straight away."

Two years later the couple met again at Joyce's 21st birthday party. Bob said: "We started doing things together and we just enjoyed being in each other's company. We were courting for three years and then we got engaged."

They have a daughter, Jayne, 45, and two grandchildren, Jake, 24, and Tonia, 21. The couple plan to go on holiday to Cornwall in the summer – to the spot where they honeymooned.

On their wedding day

Third meet under belt for the WI

Bewdley WI

ON October 13 the second meeting was held and more than 60 women attended but at least half of them had not attended the first meeting.

The intent for this meeting was to get the structure in place and find a name for the WI.

After a vote Bewdley WI gained the most so Bewdley it is.

After the business had been carried out the potential members were offered a selection of craft activities to try while they enjoyed tea, coffee and cakes.

There was silk scarf painting, an easy starter suitable for the Christmas meal, decorating a serviette for Christmas, and felt finger puppets.

The meeting closed having put in place a small starter committee to get the proceedings under way. Brenda Wright and Cheryl Hatton will share the role of President and Sue Humphries will put together a programme for the first few months of 2015.

The third meeting was held on November 3.

The meeting began with a welcome letter from the National Federation Chairman, Janice Langley which was read out by Brenda and Cheryl. The speaker for the meeting was Diana Campbell who has had an incredibly interesting career in television.

There are now 28 paid up members who are planning their Christmas meeting on December 1. To take part call 01905 641658 or email fiona@wfwi.org.uk.

The final event of 2014 will be the Christmas celebration in St Thomas' Church, Stourbridge on December 13. Programmes are now availableat the Church.

Getting ready to enjoy festivities

Kingswinford TG

THE Guild met on November 10 in the Community Centre, High Street.

Following the usual business of the minutes a lively discussion followed on the reason for affiliation fees to be raised. It was agreed our comments should be forwarded to the Federation Committee.

The date and time of the Federation Carol Service/Celebration was announced again and members were urged to attend as it gives the festivities such a good start. It is open to non-members.

Final arrangements were made for the Christmas luncheon at the Lodge, those requiring a lift were asked to make this known.

A request was made for a volunteer to take Sylvia Taylor's place on the centre's management committee as Sylvia had other commitments. Barbara White came forward.

On November 28 The Wednesday Club will go shopping at Touchwood. The December meeting will be a Knit & Natter session with cheese and wine.

The Scrabble group will meet on November 27 and December 11.

The ramblers will not ramble in December .

John Mobberly came to complete his Talk Do You Remember the 1940s?The evening was very much enjoyed and he was thanked on our behalf by Chris Moy. Josie smith was thanked for the floral arrangement of poppies.

Sign of a good talk on pubs

Black Country Society K-ford Branch

THE October meeting was held in St Mary's Church Hall, Kingswinford, when the speaker was Anthony Collis with his talk about Pub signs of the Black Country.

His talk with feedback was much enjoyed by members and friends.

The Christmas meeting will be on the second Wednesday of the month, not the third. The date therefore is December 10 when entertainment will take place. Wine and mince pies will be served at the end.

Talks are open to members, friends and non-members with a small charge to cover expenses of £1 and £1.50 respectively.

All meetings take place in the Church Centre, The Village, Kingswinford, at 7.45pm.

Nine out of 10 are now happy with 111 service

By Daniel Wainwright

NINE out of 10 patients who used the non-emergency NHS helpline were satisfied with it since it was handed over to West Midlands Ambulance Service, a report on the past years has shown.

During the previous year WMAS has received in the region of 850,000 calls into the service.

Turnaround

It is a marked turnaround from when it was first introduced in April 2013, replacing the former NHS Direct, and call centres run by different providers in different counties were struggling to cope.

The non emergency helpline was broken up into 46 cut-price contracts and NHS Direct itself was left in deficit and forced to close. The ambulance service took it over in the West Midlands in November 2013.

Figures from a patient survey show 91.3 per cent were satisfied with the service received, 77.1 per cent of which were very satisfied.

Just 3.4 per cent claimed to dissatisfied.

There were also 88.8 per cent of users who said they were likely to recommend the service.

The service increased staffing levels and training.

Daren Fradgley, NHS 111 West Midlands director, said: "A considerable amount of work has gone into stabilising and developing the service over the last 12 months.

"There is no doubt that the public of the West Midlands now have access to one of the best quality and performing NHS 111 services in the country.

"This is also clear to see in the feedback we are getting from the patients.

"I would also like to thank the entire team whose work has not only made this possible but also had such a positive impact on the public we serve.." he added.

"We are proud of what we achieved during the last year but we will not be resting on our laurels.

"We will continue to improve the service we offer to ensure it is the best it possibly can be, and patients continue to receive the highest possible level of care."

Benefits

Rachael Ellis, 111 lead commissioner West Midlands, said: "Sandwell and West Birmingham Clinical Commissioning Group is pleased to report that the service is stable and that call volumes are increasing as patients realise the benefits of the service which delivers quick, responsive advice and assistance.

"We are seeing month on month growth in the service."

Domestic abuse charity set to launch toy plea

A CHARITY has asked people to help make the festive season special for those affected by domestic violence.

The Haven Wolverhampton, which has been supporting women and children who have experienced abuse at home for more than 40 years, is preparing to launch its annual appeal.

Shows

Staff are asking people to buy an extra toy for children or make cash donations to assist with taking them to pantomimes and festive shows.

The toy appeal runs from December 1-19.

Hayley Edwards, marketing and publicity officer, said "Being in refuge during Christmas is a difficult and traumatic time for children. We are very grateful for the support we receive through donations from the community and with these we aim to make it more of an enjoyable experience by allowing the children the same opportunities as others, to enjoy the festive period.

"We hope people in and around Wolverhampton will be as generous as they have been in previous years.

"Even a small donation could help to make Christmas that bit brighter for these children."

People can donate by calling 01902 572126 or visiting 103 Salop Street between 9am-3.30pm

Alternatively, people can donate online through www.bit.ly/thehavenwishlist or www.bit.ly/thehavenbiggive

Mystery call led to poppy display aid

Accounts manager Barbara Fellowes and production foreman Stan Walters produced the steel stems

IT started with a call out the blue to see if a Darlaston firm could provide a large quantity of wire.

But it ended with the company helping create the breath-taking display of almost 900,000 poppies for the Tower of London tribute to fallen soldiers.

Barnfather Wire (Midlands) Ltd has revealed it created the wire stems for the flowers, which have been seen by around five million people from across the world.

Bosses were initially approached by a third party over whether they could supply steel wire which was cut to length this spring but were given no details about the job.

After agreeing they could fulfil the £75,000 contract it emerged the company in Willenhall Road was going to be creating the stems for 888,246 ceramic poppies, which were to be attached separately.

Staff have spoken of their pride at being part of the spectacular display, which marks the 100th anniversary of the First World War.

Dairy farmers 'facing squeeze in short term'

DAIRY farmers are facing a year-long squeeze on margins as the effect of the Russian ban on EU imports begins to bite, a milk testing company near Wolverhampton has warned.

National Milk Records, which has its major laboratory at Four Ashes, says that the next 12 months will see commodity prices slump, putting fresh pressure on already hard-hit farmers.

While the company said the longer-term forecast was rosier, it leaves producers looking at a year of struggle during 2015.

Chairman Philip Kirkham said: "Lower global commodity prices and the Russian ban on EU dairy products are driving the price of dairy products down and a 12 month squeeze on margins is forecast for UK dairy farmers and processors alike.

"Most UK farmers can look through this lean period, as the overall medium term forecast for dairying is more positive. This short term squeeze will demand efficiency of milk production and processing and NMR believes it has the services required to help deliver these efficiencies."

The company said that conditions had been good for producers between April and September, but that the short-term outlook was "far tighter".

Ban for HGV driver in U-turn on M6 Toll

A LORRY driver who did a U-turn on the M6 Toll during rush hour after driving down the slip road the wrong way has been handed a suspended prison sentence.

Footage of Lithuanian Leonid Papachin shows him going the wrong way down the slip road at junction T5 at Shenstone near Lichfield.

When he realised his mistake he pulled onto the hard shoulder but then tried to rectify it by performing the U-turn into the path of three lanes of on-coming traffic.

CCTV then shows Papachin's 40+ ton truck complete the U-turn and then drive off in the right direction. Motorway police, alerted by CCTV controllers, stopped the lorry a short time later, where the driver was arrested and charged with dangerous driving.

Papachin, aged 51, was remanded in custody and appeared at Cannock Magistrates Court where he was sentenced to 15 weeks in prison, suspended for two years and ordered to pay £85 costs. He was also disqualified from driving for 18 months after which he will be required to pass an extended test of competence.

Motorway patrol manager, Chief Inspector Jed White, said: "On this occasion the driver should have contacted motorway police immediately to help him manoeuvre safely.

"We will always prosecute offenders and, as this case demonstrates, the penalties can be quite severe. I hope that it serves as a deterrent to anyone who thinks they can put other motorists in jeopardy by ignoring motorway regulations." The drama happened at 5.30pm on October 23.

Austrian Tyrol and Innsbruck

Pick of the week

PRICE FROM £969

Experience some of the world's most breathtaking alpine scenery whilst staying in the charming village of Seefeld – a perfect spot from which to explore the varied highlights of the Tyrol.

Just a short drive away is the Tyrolean capital of Innsbruck where a guided tour of this delightful city will introduce some of the historic architecture. See the famous Golden Roof, St Jakob's cathedral and the former Imperial Palace.

Head back in time, during the journey to Jenbach, on the Achenseebahn narrow gauge railway as it winds its way into the hills from the Inn Valley up to the Achensee Lake. The coal-fired locomotives are amongst the world's oldest and use rack assistance to surmount the steep gradient. A visit is then made to the historic village of Rattenburg, the Tyrols smallest municipality, with its medieval stone buildings and narrow streets.

A drive into nearby Bavaria leads to one of Germany's most famous monuments – Neuschwanstein Castle, with its impressive architecture and an inspiration for so many stories, where there is a guided tour.

The spa town of Merano, with its Belle Époque buildings and fine gardens set between the high mountain peaks, along with the regions capital Bolzano, which boasts many castles and fortified buildings, a historic centre and gothic cathedral, are both on the itinerary of the Italian Tyrol tour.

Colvin is manic and marvellous

Gerry Colvin Band
Newhampton Folk Club

GERRY Colvin is like 50s skiffle icon Lonnie Donegan spliced with manic comedian Lee Evans.

Along with a great talent for music and an unstoppable string of stories and observations it makes him a great entertainer with a personality almost too big for the packed upper room of the Newhampton Inn, Whitmore Reans, Wolverhampton.

Colvin is an engaging raconteur and spent much of the time between his enthralling songs claiming he would not do the very thing he was doing, talking.

He was joined on stage by three excellent musicians Lyndon Webb on guitar, Trish Keelan on accordion and Jerome Davies on double bass. Colvin, who has been around for years and is lauded on both sides of the Atlantic, straddles the folk, country, jazz and Americana genres. His versatility is seemingly endless moving from folk songs such as Alcohol and Me to the Latin beat of South American Dream.

At times Colvin, originally from Barrow in Furness, is pure theatre however he does get serious too but without getting heavy with songs such The House of the Setting Sun which is about mental illness. One thing is for certain with Colvin, you get your money's worth.

MJ show was a real live Thriller

Thriller Live,
Grand Theatre

WHAT a thriller! When it comes to Michael Jackson music, I am sure the packed Grand Theatre would agree, you just can't beat it.

High energy, amazing voices and brilliant choreography this show had everything. The cast gave their all as they took us through the legendary journey that was Michael Jackson's life.

The lead vocalists were excellent, none more than Samantha Johnson, whose powerful voice filled the auditorium, and Alex Buchanan with his version of She's Out of My Life.

All the favourites were there, I'll Be There, Blame It On The Boogie, Dangerous, Black or White and of course Thriller with particularly good versions of They Don't Care About Us, Earth Song and Smooth Criminal.

With little encouragement needed the audience joined in some of the songs and they did not need a second call before they were on their feet. A fantastic show and not to be missed.

Send in the clowns — a scene from the strange and surreal Slava's Snowshow

Slava's indoor snowstorm blasts the senses in this unique show

Slava's Snowshow,
Birmingham Hippodrome

BLIZZARD conditions hit Birmingham when this wonderfully weird show returned to the Hippodrome, as it marked its 21st year on tour of the world. To describe this production as a clown show with a wintery theme is to sell it short. It is more Salvador Dali that Billy Smart.

Russian clown Slava Polunin, who no longer performs in the show, has devised a unique spectacle. He has done for clowning what Cirque du Soleil did for circus as a whole but with a ripple of grim humour. It starts with a clown with his head in a noose.

The combination of dream imagery, haunting music and slow-burning comedy is punctuated by showstopping set-pieces. These include a cobweb that envelopes the audience and an indoor snowstorm that remains one of the most sensational moments of stagecraft in modern theatre.

The show ends with giant bouncing balls being released into the auditorium. The clowns watch the audience become children, whatever their age, playing in Britain's biggest ballpit. The only people left unhappy must be the Hippodrome's cleaners, faced with mounds of paper 'snow' to clean up.

Get a bucketful of the JCB boys live

Live (@ The Borderline)
Nizlopi

IN spite of the infamous email in which Luke Concannon declared Nizlopi were no more the Leamington Spa lads are back with their first major tour in six years and of course a live album.

It seems the JCB duo is back with a vengeance complete with John Parker's beatbox and double bass.

On the album they straddle, folk, indie, acoustic and hip hop styles to explore relationships, girlfriends and questionable sexualities, and there is of course their massive hit JCB.

The first track, I'm Alive Again, from their 2008 album Make It happen, introduces you to Concannon's distinctive voice and Part of Me sees the rapper expressing feelings many will connect with.

Nizlopi Live (@ The Borderline) is available now through the band's website and on digital download.

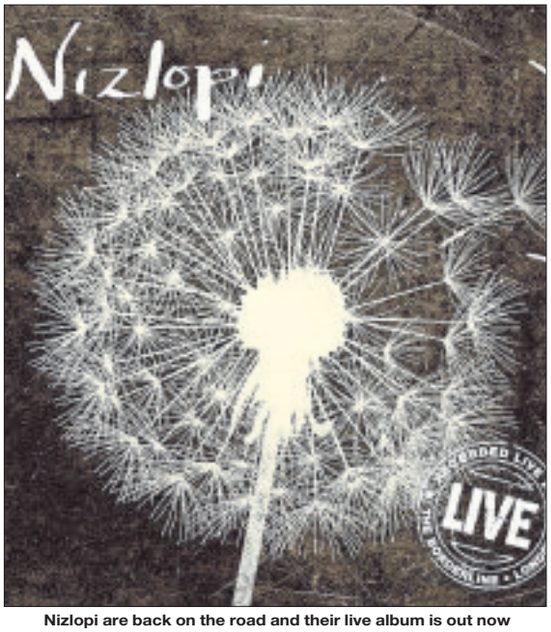
The Ballad Beyond
Jez Lowe

This is the first album from mellow-voiced Geordie Jez Lowe for four years and the songs span nearly 10 years in the making.

This collection of thoughtful and witty songs was mostly written for the BBC R2 Radio Ballads programmes.

The album is in five categories Great and Goods, Tracks and Field, Writes and Wrongs, Billys and Tommys and finally Buffs and Blues. The headings give an insight into the inspirations behind the songs.

Lowe is a master storyteller and through song he takes the listener into a wide range of thoughtful and thought-provoking tales and observations. From the barbed lyrics of Berlin 36 and Names to the light-hearted memories of childhood fairgrounds in Bother at the Hoppins and the cheeky lyrics of The Morpeth Olympics.



Nizlopi are back on the road and their live album is out now

The Ballad Beyond is on the Tantobie Label and released November 17. 9/10

Wildest Dreams
Matt Woosey

By his own admission Woosey, originally from Malvern, Worcs is spreading his wings a little, offering more than the blues he is respected for.

At times Woosey's voice has a Tom Waits sort of depth to it but slightly less gritty and dirty sounding and occasionally it has the sneering tone of Billy Idol.

Same Old Blues does exactly what is says on the tin but adds a Springsteen-style rock rift. The blues step up another level for I've Seen the Bottom with the thumping beat opening.

Bruges by Eurostar

PRICE FROM £289

There are few places left where you can totally switch off for a few days from the pressures of modern day living than Bruges. Its beauty and tranquillity is outstanding and the atmosphere of this perfectly preserved medieval town is totally unique.

Whether it's a stroll by one of the canals, sipping a coffee in the Old Market Square with the chimes ringing out from the belfry, or perhaps a gentle trip around the town by horse and carriage. Its serenity will captivate and it has something for all tastes.

A guided walk of this beautiful town will really show off its charm perfectly. Its streets are crammed with fascination and yet is so compact that the walking tour emphasises the main sites and attractions beautifully.

Climb the 366 steps of the belfry tower for breathtaking views, see the City Hall, the old Law Courts and the Basilica of the Holy Blood in which is housed some of Jesus' blood. Another must is the Notre Dame Church where Michelangelo's beautiful Madonna and Child, carved in pure white marble, is kept.

A chance to visit Ypres, centre of British activity in Belgium during the war and home to the Menin Gate, the famous memorial to the missing soldiers is offered to those that are interested. This also includes a visit to Hill 62, more commonly known as Sanctuary Wood, to see some preserved trenches.

And of course, Bruges's chocolates are known throughout the world and a visit to an establishment which still makes them by traditional methods is included to demonstrate this delicious craft.

Christmas in Wolverhampton

Festive fun for all at Wulfrun Shopping Centre

There is fun for the whole family at

Over four Saturdays, they will be hosting some of the country's best entertainers between 11am and 3pm that promise to keep busy shoppers and little ones amused – so make sure you have a breather to enjoy a giggle or two.

Kicking off the festive events are Hugh Fern and Lee Whittingstall, who guarantee laughs on November 22 with their unique Christmas cookery demonstrations. Stuck for ideas on what to do with your leftovers? Don't ask these two 'chefs': their speciality is sprout smoothie!

On November 29, Mother Christmas will be travelling through the Wulfrun, looking for the perfect reindeer to lead her sleigh so that she can deliver her gifts. Watch out for Sami the elf – he'll be looking for the best reindeer specimens from among the shoppers. You have been warned.

Dance

There will be grannies with attitude on December 6 when the Granny Turismo Chrismo show comes to Wulfrun.

Marge and Doris are the quirky twosome whose outrageously funny shopping trolley dance routines will have you in stitches (let's hope they lay off the Christmas sherry before they begin).

Have you been naughty or nice? There's only one way to find out: two cheeky giant elves will be visiting on December 13 and they'll be walking through the shopping centre, deciding if you deserve a visit from the big man himself on Christmas Eve! There's still time to get your name on the good list, you know.

With more than 40 high street stores, including Poundland, Pandora, Argos, Peacocks and The Fragrance Shop, Wulfrun Shopping Centre is the perfect place to do your Christmas shopping.

Join the cast of Cinderella at Wolverhampton's Grand Theatre for a magical adventure in panto-land

It's pantotime

The highlight of Wolverhampton's festive calendar once again promises all the tradition, fun and excitement that audiences enjoy year after year.

For the first time ever, comedian, entertainer and pantomime legend Julian Clary headlines the Wolverhampton pantomime to play Dandini in Cinderella.

Julian, who won Celebrity Big Brother in 2012, is one of pantomime's most glamorous stars and it's fitting that he is cast in Cinderella, the production that is set to be one of the most lavish pantomimes in current years.

He is joined on stage by Joe Tracini (Hollyoaks' Dennis) as the lovable Buttons.

X Factor favourite and local lady Niki Evans returns by popular demand, with her powerful vocals and stunning costumes – this Fairy Godmother is sure to be a dream come true.

For tickets call the Box Office on 01902 42 92 12 or book online at www.grandtheatre.co.uk

Wolverhampton is ready to declare 'It's Christmas!' this year with a four day lights switch-on spectacular.

In Market Square families and friends will be able to soak up the festive spirit around the mini-market and funfair with Christmas tunes playing on the Wulfruna Steam Organ while pop stars grace the big screen.

The fun-packed evening will crescendo at 6.30pm with the lights switch on heralded by a breath-taking firework display.

Party time – enjoy a festive night in the city with friends and colleagues

'Tis the season for fun

Eat, drink and be merry (in a responsible way of course) this Christmas at one of the many fantastic restaurants, bars and nightclubs the city centre has to offer.

Celebrate at family-owned Indian and Bangladeshi restaurant the Bilash. A favourite in the city centre for over 30 years, this Cheapside eatery's festive fare includes Christmas lunch, dinner and special delights menus, and if you are looking for present ideas why not try a spice hamper or gift card.

If curry isn't to your taste, book a table at Rosso e Nero where you can enjoy fine cuisine in this Darlington Street venue's elegant surroundings. Christmas lunch and evening set menus offer delicious Italian food given a festive twist with even traditional Christmas pudding on offer.

After a lovely meal why not make the evening last a little longer by visiting one of the many city centre bars. The Royal London in Wulfruna Street has a sleighfull of Christmas themed events throughout the whole of December, including Sunday Bingo, Monday quizzes, Beer Pong, 80/90s Retro Glitter and Christmas Jumper parties. For the younger at heart, Faces Nightclub is the place to party the night away with special Christmas and New Year events planned.

And after a great night out to help you get home safely Wolverhampton City Council are again providing a safe haven for tired and foot-sore party people. Take advantage of the taxi booking service in the safe, warm waiting area in the Epic cafe (opposite the Goose in Lichfield Street) with a free hot drink.

It will be open from 11pm to 4am on November 29, December 5, 6, 12, 13, 19, 20 and 27.

Taxi marshalling will again be in operation ensuring a safe ride home.

Enjoying traditional festivities with FRS

HAVE some fun this Christmas and invite a dash of country character into your home for a taste of a traditional Christmas that will have happy memories and nostalgia flooding in by the stocking load.

Country clothing encapsulates what we love most about this season, whether it be the wellies that allow us to trudge through the snow and jump in puddles, the wax jacket that protects us against the winter elements or the rich tweeds and tartans that evoke a sense of nostalgia for bygone years and wild, rugged landscapes.

If you have fond memories of being surrounded by Fairisle knit clad family around the Christmas dinner table then maybe you are a country bumpkin at heart. Fortunately in recent years the Fairisle knit has been refined and honed into a fashionable and beautifully styled range of clothing and accessories, to create a range of seasonal favourites you'll want to wear again and again.

Currently enjoying a fashion renaissance are the heritage mainstays, tweed and tartan. Evoking images of winter country scenes, wild and windswept moors and ancient castles, these fabrics too are enjoying a return to fashion favour and you will now find them in stunning modern cuts, elegant jackets and embellishing cosy knitwear.

And what of the infamous Christmas jumper? Forget the itchy fabrics and loud motifs of previous decades, this year our woollies are festooned with a host of country characters who are positively refined and charming.

Nothing says winter like a waxed jacket, from the 'new' smell, to the feel to the memories you make wearing it, it is our go-to winter weather essential and, thanks to a recent resurgence in popularity this country essential can now be found in a huge range of flattering shapes, styles, designs and colours.

FRS is home to much loved brands like Barbour, Hunter, Joules, Aigle and Le Chameau. Find the perfect gift, from that special something, to quirky stocking fillers and unwrap a surprise with free gifts included with selected purchases.

Our extended Christmas returns policy gives you until January 19, 2015 to return or exchange purchases. See the FRS website www.bestinthecountry.co.uk where there is free delivery on all orders and returns are free too.

Ming Moon, Wolverhampton, is a new dining experience for the city

Try familiar and unusual dishes

Incredible cooking styles are unveiled

MING Moon Wolverhampton opened its doors to the public in November.

The former Wing Wah restaurant has undergone a dramatic transformation making it more opulent and distinctive, attracting customers who loved the previous buffet restaurant, as well as new customers who will love the change in style as well as an all-new menu.

The design of the new restaurant has involved the expertise of interior designer, Simon Tong, winner of the Michael Blee Best Project Award. The cost of the refurbishment has gone into hundreds of thousands of pounds, but this is money well spent considering the success of the flag ship restaurant Ming Moon on Hurst Street in Birmingham city centre.

The previous restaurant had been known for its world cuisine; the new Ming Moon Wolverhampton restaurant will still have an excellent variety of dishes but will have more emphasis on Asian cuisine, including Chinese, Thai, Japanese and Indian dishes.

There will be an amazing live 'theatre-style' open kitchen where master chefs will be able to delight customers with their culinary skills.

The menu has been designed by head chef William Zhao, an award-winning executive chef with many years experience creating Oriental cuisine that includes Peking, Szechuan Cantonese styles.

There will be the famous Teppanyaki dish as well as the new Brazilian Grill giving customers the chance to see freshly prepared meats cooked on a skewer over the hot coals – all the enjoyment of a barbecue minus the weather.

These cooking styles not only look incredible but are very important in bringing out the flavours and the essence of the food.

The restaurant will not only offer amazing dishes that will tantalize the taste buds, but will also house a modern day Cocktail bar.

The restaurant will seat over 250 people, with customers benefitting from an extra 30 staff that will be on hand to offer an excellent restaurant service, with the restaurant doing their part for the local economy by creating 30 more jobs.

Ming Moon Wolverhampton hopes to lead the way in a new modern style of Asian cuisine from the aesthetics of the interior design all the way through to the most important aspect when eating out, the taste!

The whole experience promises to be a feast for the appetite and for the eyes.

Attend a service of dedication at Compton Hospice this Christmas, taking place on December 7

Remember a loved one by supporting hospice

Christmas is a very special and poignant time to remember loved ones we have lost.

Through our Light up a Life appeal, Compton Hospice offers a unique opportunity to honour those special to us, by dedicating a light on our celebratory Tree of Life.

Throughout the Christmas period, hundreds of lights shine out from our tree which stands pride of place in the grounds of our hospice.

Each light is a gift for that someone special, a way of remembering them, as they were, a shining light in our lives.

Your gift to those who have meant so much will also be a gift to our patients and their families currently facing the challenge of living with an incurable illness.

Making a donation

If you would like a light shining on our tree, please complete the dedication / payment form. For each donation we will:

- dedicate a light on our tree and record the name of your loved one in our Book of Dedication, along with your short message.
- send you a Light Up a Life Memory Card for you to display in your home
- invite you to our 'Light Up a Life' service taking place on Sunday 7th December at St Edmunds Catholic Academy

Your message will be displayed in our online Book of Dedication and also handwritten into the actual Book of Dedication at the hospice.

This will be available for viewing at the above mentioned service and on main reception thereafter.

The service

You are most welcome to join the service at Compton Hospice as all celebrate the treasured memories of many special people this Christmas.

The service of dedication will be led by Chaplain, Revd. Elaine Anderton on Sunday, December 7, from 3pm to 4pm at St Edmunds Catholic Academy, Compton Road West, Wolverhampton, WV3 9DU.

Guests are invited to join the service at the school from 2.30pm until 4.30pm to view the Book of Dedication and enjoy a selection of refreshments.

Enjoy a gold and black Christmas

Christmas is just a few weeks away so everyone should be busy writing their Christmas present list over the next week or so, and many eager beavers will have already started.

With Wolves riding high in the Championship this season what's sure to be on the lists of many black country residents is something black and gold, that shows allegiance to their favourite team!

The good news is that there are literally hundreds of different gift ideas available from the official club retail megastores at Molineux and Dudley St Wolverhampton, and of course online at www.wolvesmegastore.co.uk

So if you're looking for inspiration take a look at the Wolves replica 14/15 home shirt from PUMA, or the popular white away shirt, both of which are available in adult and junior sizes, with prices starting from just £30. There are also shorts and socks available for both kits.

If you're looking for something a little different then there is a huge range of official leisurewear available for male, female, junior and infant fans, including tee shirts, sweatshirts, hoodies and jackets, all at great prices and in a variety of styles and colours and starting from just £10.

Whether you are buying for an 8 or 80 year old, there will be something from our fantastic range of gifts and souvenirs that will help you to tick off another name from your list. Some of the most popular lines this year will include mugs, scarves, watches, jewellery, books, DVD's calendars, scarves, hats, footballs, pictures, luggage, stationery and much more. And with a stocking filler range starting at £2 Christmas needn't cost you an arm and a leg. Look out for special offers in store and online in the lead up to Christmas. Full details will be available from wolves.co.uk and on facebook.com/officialwolvesfc or twitter.com/officialwolves. To sign up to receive special offers via email visit joinwolves.co.uk.

Visit either of the megastores at Molineux or Dudley St Wolverhampton, which are open seven days a week, and late night shopping until 8pm on Wednesdays from November 26, or go online at www.wolvesmegastore.co.uk

House full signs for big Civic gigs

BLACK Country rock god Robert Plant has reportedly rubbished claims that Richard Branson offered him multi-millions to join a Led Zeppelin reunion but fans of the iconic rocker can see him in action at a sold-out Wolverhampton Civic Hall on Friday.

There's another full house when sassy soul singer Paloma Faith funks up the venue with her Perfect Contradiction album on Saturday. The same day next door at a packed Wulfrun Hall, from noon to midnight, punk rockers — including Slaughter & The Dogs, UK Subs and Splodgenessabounds — celebrate Daz Russell's 30 years putting on gigs. You can get a ticket for The Specials at the Civic tonight (Thursday).

BIRMINGHAM gig highlights kick off with bluesy rock 'n' roll from Barrence Whitfield & The Savages at The Institute in Digbeth tonight (Thursday). James will urge fans to Sit Down at the NIA on Saturday while James Blunt will be sharing his Moon Landing at the same venue on Sunday. That's the same night New Jersey rockers The Gaslight Anthem play the 02 Academy. New York singer-songwriter Sharon Van Etten is at The Institute on Wednesday.

The Robin 2 in Bilston revels in 80s nostalgia, plus some newer material, from Go West on Saturday and China Crisis on Sunday.

HIS alter-ego Peter Barlow has just been cleared of murder but Coronation Street's Chris Gascoyne is gearing up for another bad boy role as he prepares for Birmingham's big panto.

Fun

Chris said: "I am hoping it is going to be good fun, nice and light-hearted."

Duncan is itching to get started. "I've done a lot of theatre and appeared in the West End but I've never had the opportunity to do pantomime," he said.

Their co-stars include Jane McDonald, Gary Wilmot, Paul Zerdin and Matt Slack. The Hippodrome panto runs from December 19 to February 1.

Duncan James and Chris Gascoyne look forward to Jack and the Beanstalk in Birmingham

A MUCH-loved classic American novel comes to the stage when an acclaimed version of Harper Lee's story of childhood, courage and racial prejudice, To Kill A Mockingbird, arrives in Birmingham.

The New Alexandra Theatre will be the venue for the touring incarnation of Regent Park Open Air Theatre's production. It has been adapted by Christopher Sergel from Harper Lee's novel.

Lawyer

Directed by Timothy Sheader, To Kill a Mockingbird opened Regent's Park Open Air Theatre's 2013 season to critical acclaim and sell out performances.

It will be staged in Birmingham from Tuesday to Saturday, November 25. Daniel Betts will play Atticus alongside Zackary Momoh as the accused Tom Robinson and Christopher Akrill as the mysterious Boo Radley. Jemima Bennett, Ava Potter and Rosie Boore with share the role of Scout.

Jemima Bennett as Scout

An adaptation of Ernest Hemmingway's First World War love story A Farewell To Arms is at Birmingham Rep's Studio venue tonight, tomorrow and Saturday. Roald Dahl's The BFG starts a whiz-popping Christmas run at The Rep on November 26.

Saucy musical The Full Monty, in which redundant steel workers reinvent themselves as strippers to a disco soundtrack, stars EastEnders and Hollyoaks actor Gary Lucy at Wolverhampton Grand from Monday to Saturday.

Bouncers' view of the clubbers

GET the doorman's view of a Friday night on the town when John Godber's play about 1980s clubbing, Bouncers, revived by Reform Theatre Company, is staged at Wolverhampton's Arena Theatre tonight (Thursday) and tomorrow.

The Wulfruna Street venue, part of the University of Wolverhampton, is on Saturday hosting The Ugly Girl, which has been described as a surreal slapstick musical. It features Liz Carr and is brought to the theatre by Disability Arts Touring Network.

A Black Country Poetry Night at the Arena on Wednesday, November 26, features Liz Berry, Emma Purshouse, Dave Reeves and Billy Spakemon.

THOSE in a festive mood can celebrate Holly at Christmas with the Buddy Holly and the Cricketers show at Birmingham New Alexandra Theatre tonight combining a tribute to the rock 'n' roll star with seasonal tunes. Tomorrow the city centre venue has the Jackson Live in Concert tribute to Michael Jackson by Ben with band and singers and on Saturday prepare for a long night of laughter when comedy veteran Ken Dodd tickles his audience. The one-nighters continue on Sunday with another rock 'n' roll tribute, Roy Orbison and Friends with Halesowen's Barry Steele as The Big O.

Dominic Sandbrook

Tomorrow's Worlds: The Unearthly History of Science Fiction (BBC2, 9.45pm)

In a new four-part series, historian Dominic Sandbrook examines the genre which has dominated the media for decades, after years of being on the fringes of popular culture. And there's no shortage of big names taking part, including Star Trek veterans William Shatner and Nichelle Nichols, Star Wars's feuding duo Anthony Daniels and Kenny Baker, Avatar's Zoe Saldana and one of the genre's most popular authors, Neil Gaiman. In episode one, Dominic examines sci-fi's enduring fascination with outer space, from Jules Verne's groundbreaking 19th-century vision of a voyage to the moon, to that galaxy far, far away in Star Wars.

PICK OF THE WEEK

Martin digs deep to find us the best deals

Financial journalist Martin Lewis has been frequenting our screens for years now, giving insider tips on how we can further tighten our purse-strings during these hard-up times.

Of course, Mr Lewis' tips have been known to get him into trouble with the big guns of the trading world on the odd occasion, but, from challenging unfair parking tickets to doling out the know-how regarding those television adverts and pestering text messages about mis-sold PPI, his advice has proved priceless (pardon the pun) in the past.

So it's with open arms and loud cheers that we welcome him back to the telly, alongside reporter Saira Khan – and it's come at just the right time, and given the time of the year, there's a noticeable theme to this first episode.

The series kicks off on what's become known as 'Black Friday', the date marking the beginning of the Christmas shopping season. But if you're already fretting because you don't even know where to start when it comes to present-buying this year, Martin will be listing all the essential deals that you expect to find in stores and online.

Meanwhile, Martin and Saira visit a family in Hertfordshire for a personal stock take of all their belongings to help them raise money to pay for Christmas. And soon enough, any regrets they thought they'd have are forgotten, as they sell unused clothes, mobile phones, buggies and toys.

The Christmas Ideal Home Show is also on Martin and Saira's to-do list this week, as they give members of the public handy tips on how to drum up a bit of extra cash for the festive period, while Martin dresses up for pantomime season as Dame Right-I-Am to show us how we can become wise consumers.

But while Martin is keen to impart his expertise, he certainly doesn't want to sound like he's preaching, telling PA that he never intended to make money from doing this: "I don't preach about how to make money. That's not really my thing at all or my passion to be honest.

"I was very lucky is the answer. I set up a website I believed in. It originally had no way of making money. I set up a business. I still don't consider myself to be an entrepreneur. I'm somebody who set up a website and I consider myself to be a journalist and consumer campaigner.

"Because the website got so big I needed a way to fund my servers, so I came up with the most ethical way I could think of to fund the site, and it did a lot better than I thought it would.

"I'm about providing information for consumers and fighting for consumer rights. I'm not about setting businesses up, and I think there are far more qualified people than me to talk about how to do that. I got lucky."

Whichever way you look at it, Martin, we're lucky that you got lucky, as our purses have been a lot heavier since you came along…

MONDAY
Loch Ness Monster: The Missing Evidence
Channel 5, 8pm
Tales of a creature haunting Loch Ness go back for nearly 1,500 years, but only in the last century did the legend truly take off. At St Andrews University, statistical ecologist Charles Paxton has compiled a database of every sighting of the monster ever reported and his team hopes detailed analysis of these records will finally uncover the truth behind the myth of the Loch Ness monster. This programme uses modern forensic technology to re-examine well-known photos and footage, looking at how hopes of finding a surviving dinosaur were dashed by a hoax that fooled everyone, while enthusiast Adrian Shine recounts his decades-long search for the elusive beast.

Posh People: Inside Tatler
BBC2, 9pm
Forget watching Made in Chelsea – if you really want a glimpse of Britain's most privileged, just flick through the pages of Tatler. The oldest magazine in the world, it's been documenting the lives of Britain's upper-classes for 300 years, and being pictured in its pages is a rite of passage for the country's social elite. Now this new series is going behind the scenes to find out what's involved in documenting the lives of the rich and powerful. It discovers that you don't have to be posh to work at Tatler, but it probably does help – editor Kate Reardon is a self-confessed 'honking great Sloane', and all the features team are expected to be versed in the rules of upper-class life. For the magazine's new recruit, writer Mathew Bell, it's a chance to see how the other half live, as he attempts to go from middle-class outsider to privileged insider, at home in the company of those featured on the magazine, who range from Lord Glasgow to Nigerian millionaire Kola Karim.

TUESDAY
Live UEFA Champions League
ITV, 7.30pm
Manchester City v Bayern Munich (Kick-off 7.45pm). Coverage of the matchday five Group E clash from the Etihad Stadium, where the hosts are in desperate need of a positive result. Defeat at home to CSKA Moscow last time out left City bottom of the group and on the brink of elimination, which would be sealed if they fail to beat the German champions and CSKA or AS Roma triumph in the other encounter. The reverse fixture on matchday one saw Bayern win 1-0 courtesy of a late goal from former City defender Jerome Boateng, while the corresponding fixture here in last season's competition also saw the Bundesliga outfit record a victory, as they completely outclassed the Citizens en route to a 3-1 scoreline. Presented by Adrian Chiles.

Live UEFA Champions League, Tuesday, ITV, 7.30pm

WEDNESDAY
Waterloo Road
BBC1, 8pm
Floyd confronts Tiffany and Justin about their relationship, and after the two boys gets into a fight, Tiffany worries her brother will spill the beans to Vaughan and Allie. The police descend on Waterloo Road when Kevin's computer hacking on a multinational organisation is traced back to the school, sparking a major security risk, and Sonya's short story looks set to jeopardise her friendship with Christine after it turns out she has drawn inspiration from her colleague's alcoholic past.

THURSDAY
Britain's Bloodiest Dynasty
Channel 5, 9pm
New series. Powerful storytelling and dramatic reconstruction bring to life one of the most bloody and violent chapters in British history as Dan Jones explores the lives of the Plantagenets, who ruled England and much of France during the Middle Ages. The historian begins with Henry II – the first king of the dynasty – a dashing and energetic warrior who transformed England from a violent and lawless state into the heart of an empire that would become one of the greatest that Europe has ever seen.

FRIDAY
Ben Fogle: New Lives in the Wild
Channel 5, 9pm
Ben journeys to the wilderness of Alaska to spend time with Mike and Fran Turner and their children Cathy and Nate, who welcome him into their simple, self-built log cabin. He discovers how the couple have created a self-sufficient lifestyle by working the land and trapping animals, while battling against forest fires in the summer and freezing conditions in the winter. Ben takes every opportunity to get stuck into forest survival, as he battles mosquitoes and adapts to 24-hour daylight.

In September we reported on EU plans to regulate BTL mortgages and that the Government was receptive to the notion. Lenders are not impressed. Their trade body the CML has urged HM Treasury "not to go beyond the legal minimum" in implementing the EU Mortgage Credit Directive. It wants a restrictive definition of "consumer" which would exclude from regulation all those who have an existing rental property with or without a mortgage but would catch first time Landlords engaging in a BTL transaction and those who inherit property from a family member and are a first time landlord. It looks as though BTL could become a rather exclusive club!

Jimny gets a freshen up

By Anthony Martyn

Suzuki has given some specification upgrades to its highly popular Jimny compact 4x4 model, aimed at refreshing the appeal of the iconic model in the Suzuki range.

First introduced in 1998, Jimny has built up an established, tough and capable reputation amongst its 22,000 loyal owners in the UK with many currently on their third or even fourth new Jimny.

Steel Silver and Khaki Green have been added to the metallic paint range of five shades available for the higher specification SZ4 model with three metallic and one solid colour available for SZ3. Metallic paint is a £399 option.

In line with EU regulations both SZ3 and SZ4 models now have a new design instrument cluster that includes a Tyre Pressure Monitoring System (TPMS) for added safety as well as a Gear Shift Indicator (GSI) to help the driver keep fuel consumption to a minimum.

The 2015 model is also equipped with ESC (Electronic Stability Control) as standard.

Jimny has a neat and practical look and since sales began in 1998 it has accumulated a loyal following of customers who enjoy a quirky alternative to a supermini or crossover SUV.

'First introduced in 1998, Jimny has built up an established, tough and capable reputation.'

Jimny exceeds expectations off road whilst still being more than capable in any urban area, ideal for customers who want the best of both worlds.

The all-alloy 16 valve 1.3-litre engine has variable valve timing, ensuring lively performance, and strong fuel economy with the manual transmission model returning an official 39.8mpg in combined cycle driving (38.7mpg for the automatic); respective CO2 outputs are 162 and 167g/km.

All Jimny models are covered by a three-year/60,000-mile new vehicle warranty, one year AA Suzuki Assistance, providing 24-hour UK and European roadside assistance, recovery and associated services; and by a six year perforation warranty.

On the road prices include VAT, delivery to dealer, number plates and First Registration Fee.

Pulsar from Nissan could be the ticket for plenty of car buyers

By Ian Donaldson

Nissan is scratching a seven year itch and entering a vital part of the car market where it's been absent since 2007, while it made a mint with a couple of SUVs.

Now that the Qashqai and Juke are pulling in punters like there's no tomorrow, it's high time to put up something against the like of Ford's Focus, helping fill a part of the market that accounts for one in three new cars sold in the UK.

This five-door hatchback follows the same design path chosen by competitors and majors on space and the chance to add the sort of technology usually associated with dearer cars.

That can include four cameras that give a bird's eye view of what's around the car and automatic emergency braking which can stop the car at low speeds before you hit the vehicle ahead.

Designed

The Pulsar looks smart from the outside and obviously designed with a European twist (not the eastern one you might expect from a Japanese car maker) and is clean and uncluttered inside, if a bit too obviously plastic in some areas.

Nissan has pushed front and rear wheels further apart than in any obvious rival and the resultant space in the back will easily managed a six-footer sitting behind a similarly tall driver.

Only a potential owner will know how useful that feature will prove, with more than half all Pulsar sales destined for the fleet market, where they'll spend a lot of time with only the drive aboard.

The present Pulsar range is simplicity itself with just one petrol engine (1.2 litres) and a single diesel (1.5 diesel) on offer, although a sportier petrol version looks a certainty before too long.

Prices range from £15,995 and top out at £21,945, which includes the £1,600 premium asked for diesel models. About half of all Pulsar buyers are expected to take the petrol route, with the Acenta (£17,645) likely to be the highest selling trim line.

That model comes with the automatic safety brakes already mentioned, along with automatic lights and wipers. Every Pulsar has air conditioning and Bluetooth phone connection, while the N-TEC model tested here adds 17 inch alloy wheels, satellite navigation, DAB radio and cruise control.

Economy

In a car world where diesel is king on the economy front it's too easy to forget the charms of petrol power; displayed here by an engine that stays hushed even from a cold start and pulls smoothly from such low engine speeds you'll stay in higher gears longer, to the benefit of fuel economy.

Given a firm request for maximum urge, the Pulsar proved a surprisingly engaging car on some familiar back roads, all the time staying comfortable on surfaces I know (from bitter experience) can unsettle a lot of other machines.

That's about what I expected and was easily bettered by slowing down and changing up when the dash arrow prompt told me to.

That resulted in an impressive 52mpg, showing once again that you can have fun or frugality, but not both together.

The diesel would undoubtedly top that figure without trying hard, but remember the £1,600 extra it will cost.

Ford's popular Kuga SUV gets boost with an update

Under the bonnet the flagship Kuga diesel model receives a horsepower boost, with the 2.0-litre motor's output now 180 horsepower – 17 more than before. It's also cleaner, with the 2.0-litre diesel family now producing less CO2.

It's the same story on the petrol front, with Ford swapping the Kuga's 1.6-litre EcoBoost engine for a 1.5-litre unit and reducing CO2 emissions to 143g/km from 154g/km.

Improved

Alongside the engine upgrades, Ford has improved the car's kit levels. The firm's innovative SYNC with AppLink multimedia interface will now enable drivers to voice-activate apps, while keeping their eyes on the road and their hands on the wheel. These already include leading music-streaming services Spotify, Audioteka, Glympse and Radioplayer.

Furthermore, the Kuga can be had with adaptive cruise control including forward alert, which warns drivers if they are travelling too close to the vehicle in front.

Further available technologies include hands-free tailgate, blind spot information system, active city stop, lane keeping aid, lane keeping alert, auto high beam, driver alert and traffic sign recognition.

Classic is now up to date

By John Griffiths

Remember those sounds of the Sixties? The Beatles, the Who, the Rolling Stones, Cream – and the cream of British motorcycles which ruled the roads.

There's little on today's roads, apart from an E-Type Jag perhaps, which is so evocative of that golden age of British transport as the Triumph Bonneville.

But nostalgia is at least in part about looking back through rose tinted spectacles (and I'm not just talking hippies) so sometimes we forget the downsides like awful drum brakes, lights measured in a handful of candlepower and oil leaks.

Thankfully, today's Triumph engineers lost the specs, rose tints and all, and created a new Bonneville which respects the 60s icon but is thoroughly modern, featuring such things as a bigger, fuel-injected engine and disc brakes to make it a thoroughly useable, enjoyable machine for the 21st Century.

The homage to two eras starts with the 865cc, overhead cam parallel twin-engine – original Bonnies were the same configuration but 650s, later enlarged to 750cc.

Look at the modern block and you'll see what appears to be a pair of carbs but in fact they conceal a thoroughly modern fuel-injection system and electronic ignition which is more efficient, improving throttle response while reducing fuel consumption and exhaust emissions.

It does hark back to the 60s and there's nothing else quite like it: a bass duet to accompany your journey with an occasional 'pop pop' chorus as you shut off the power. To me it has so much more character than modern four-cylinder or V-twin unit.

You also get disc brakes front and rear – only a single disc at the front but it performs competently for a bike of this weight and performance.

Heritage

Triumph calls the bike a classic and that's a good as description as any. It's not a sports or adventure bike and in other manufacturer's hands its nature could be described as a 'cruiser' but the Midlands company has a rich heritage of its own so, thankfully, didn't have to produce a Harley-Davidson lookalike.

Many riders will find the Bonnie's performance and handling better than some of that ilk, too. It has a gutsy 67bhp and 68Nm of torque from relatively low revs which means there's enough get up and go to feel a powerful tug on your arms as you press on up through the gears. Top (fifth) gear is set quite high, for quieter cruising and economy.

Top speed is estimated at 115mph, which is more than enough for a bike designed for British roads and not track days, and there's plenty of oomph.

TESTED

Triumph Bonneville T100
Economy: urban 51.2mpg; constant 56mph 68mpg; constant 75mph 55.6mpg (fuel tank 16 litres).
Insurance: Group 9 of 17.
Price: £7,599.

It's a naked bike, too, so wind pressure (and the constraints of the law) tends to restrict any temptation to press on for the magical 'ton up' of 60s bikers, and could be tiring on long motorway runs.

OK, you could no doubt find an after-market screen but quite honestly it would ruin the classic lines of the Bonnie which Triumph have worked so hard to preserve, and which is a compelling reason for buying one.

The test bike, a top of the range T100 with spoked chrome wheels, chrome crankcase and gearbox covers, a chrome chain guard and a colour scheme of fusion white with gold coach lines, certainly turned heads (including mine).

I found it a charismatic bike just to look at, as well as to ride on my 150-mile trip through Shropshire and Mid-Wales, the T100 growing on me as I explored its capabilities.

It averaged around 60mpg, so not an expensive day out either

It's not a heavy bike and doesn't have (or in fact need) the big fat tyres you'd expect on a supersports machine, but its straight line stability is impressive and it tracks accurately through the corners too.

The suspension (telescopic forks at the front and twin, chromed spring shocks at the rear) cope well with rough b-roads, providing a reasonable balance between ride comfort and competent handling.

I found it inspired confidence and, like a dog owner is said to grow to look like their pet, the Bonneville shared some of its character with me which made for a relaxed, stress-free ride.

The traditionally-styled seat is flat rather than sculpted but rather well padded, while the high bars and well-placed controls allow for an upright riding position comfortable for longer rides. The extra padding is new, and certainly welcome for those of us heading for the hills, or the beach.

The basic Bonneville costs £6,799 while the T100 comes in at £7,599, with the extra buying you the traditional wire-spoked wheels and paint schemes, the distinctive engine and chain guard chrome features, and protective rubber gaiters covering the front suspension, plus large twin analogue dials (speedo and rev counter).

Modern Bonnies have been produced by today's Triumph company at Hinckley, Leicestershire, since 2001 and are sold all over the world, proving that it isn't just nostalgia and flying the flag for Britain's motorcycling heritage which have made it such a big seller.

It no doubt strikes a chord with those who appreciate such things, but it would hardly be so popular if Triumph hadn't created an excellent blend of classic styling with modern technology and capability.

It's relaxing, easy to ride and just as competent as a commuter, a tourer or simply your chosen steed for a Sunday run out in the country.

Vauxhall is taking soft option with little ADAM

By David Banner

It's genuinely hard to know where to start with this one, but we really ought to get the name out of the way first. The Vauxhall ADAM Rocks Air must go down as one of the strangest car names since the Japanese discovered Google Translate and stopped sending us Pantry Boy Supremes and Giga Light Dumps. But what is this thing?

If you hadn't noticed, Vauxhall has tried to claim a share of the niche small car market occupied by the likes of the Fiat 500 or the Citroen DS3. The trouble is, the ADAM is somewhat hampered by a badge that smacks of Luton rather than Turin and sales have been slow. The ADAM Rocks Air is a soft-top version styled with offroad-style design cues.

The ADAM Rocks Air is available with a choice of three engines. The 70PS 1.2-litre engine and the 87PS 1.4-litre engine we've seen before and very serviceable units they are. Of more interest is the introduction of a 1.0-litre three-cylinder powerplant, good for 115PS thanks to its turbocharger. It's the first Vauxhall to get this engine, which is the mainstay of the fourth generation Corsa range.

When plumbed into the open-topped ADAM, it's capable of getting to 62mph in under 10 seconds. Unlike most three-cylinder units, it's been designed to offer excellent refinement, with the characteristic warble of a three-pot only really audible when you mash the throttle. With 170Nm available at just 1,800rpm, it's a more relaxing engine than you'd imagine, albeit with a slightly elastic feel to the throttle response.

Retuning

The Rocks Air model adds another 15mm to the stock ADAM's ride height. This isn't going to equip you to tackle the Dakar Rally, as underneath it's still the same front-wheel drive chassis architecture, but Vauxhall has done a thorough job in retuning the springs, shocks and roll bars. Therefore this Rocks Air version still corners well and ride quality isn't bad either.

In fact, you'd be hard pushed to feel much in the way of difference. Ease of use on urban roads is enhanced by a 'city' mode, which increases the electronic power steering system's assistance at lower speeds.

Believe the press bumf and you might get excited that Vauxhall has created something genuinely good and original. Read between the lines a little and you might suspect that the parts that are good are not original, and the parts that are original aren't that good. Does the market need a soft-top faux-by-four? Didn't automotive evolution kill this genre off at least ten years ago, with most of us hoping it would never be resurrected?

That said, Mark Adams' team has done a good job in the styling of this car. What sounds utterly ludicrous on paper works surprisingly well in the metal, with strong lines and a lovely chutzpah to its design. The all-road-style wheelarches work well with the 'floating' roof which is visually disconnected from the body.

Button

The electric folding canvas roof is operated via a button located in the front area of the headliner and folds back neatly on to the C-pillars in just seven seconds. The roof can be opened or closed while the car is moving at up to 85mph. The boot keeps the full opening of a hatchback and loading volume remains untouched. The entire roof module is acoustically tuned for noise insulation inside the cabin and the robust, three-layer fabric has a neoprene centre for weatherproofing and durability. The folding canvas roof is available in a choice of two exterior colours – Black or Sweet Coffee.

The ADAM Rocks Air ensures that it's not going to freeze you on cold winter mornings. It's the only vehicle in its class to offer the comfort of a heated steering wheel, driver and front passenger seats. Other interesting items of standard equipment include a hill start assist which maintains the brake function for about two seconds after the driver has taken his/her foot off the brake pedal. This prevents Rocks Air from rolling back when starting on a slope or, when driving off from traffic lights or a parking spot on a hill.

The standard infotainment equipment is a CD 3.0 BT system, with radio and a MP3/WMA compatible CD player featuring Bluetooth and USB connections, as well as a hands-free function.

Go for the 1.2-litre petrol engine and you'll see economy figures of 53.3mpg with emissions of 125g/km. The 1.4-litre powerplant offers up another 17PS with very little efficiency penalty, netting 52.3mpg and 126g/km. The star of the show is the 1.0-litre turbo unit which gets the best economy at 55.4mpg, the lowest emissions at 119g/km and is comfortably the quickest and most refined to boot. A 38-litre fuel tank rather caps the range a little, but the ADAM was never designed to be a GT car.

NOTICE TO READERS
Please be aware that when purchasing a puppy there are some simple guidelines you can follow to ensure that you are not purchasing from a Puppy Farmer:
1. Try to ensure you visit the puppy whilst it is still with it's Mother.
2. Do not arrange to collect a puppy from any other location than that of the breeder.
3. Ensure that you are given any KC documentation, if pedigree. Whilst Midland News Association publications take great care to avoid publication of advertisements from Puppy Farmers we cannot accept any liability should readers purchase from this kind of establishment.

Taylor powers to Grand Slam glory

Darts

PHIL Taylor powered to Grand Slam of Darts glory in Wolverhampton for the sixth time at the weekend – but nine-dart hero Kim Huybrechts will be just as remembered this year, writes Craig Birch.

Taylor announced his return to form with the all-too-familiar sight of him lifting the trophy at the Civic Hall, as he has for all but two occasions since the Grand Slam started.

He have to survive a few frights against Dave Chisnall, who battled back from 8-3 to level at 10-10 and then clawed it back to 15-13 before conceding defeat.

Huybrechts couldn't join Taylor in the final, but pushed Chisnall in the last four. He was edged out 16-15 in the deciding leg, awakening memories of last year's Taylor-Adrian Lewis clash.

And the Belgian had raised the biggest cheer of the whole tournament by treating Black Country darts fans to something they haven't been used to seeing.

Not since James Wade's perfect leg against Gary Anderson during the 2009 competition had the Civic witnessed a nine-darter and it came in far different circumstances.

While Wade couldn't even win that second round tie, Huybrechts was on the way to dumping reigning world champion and 2012 Grand Slam finalist Michael van Gerwen out of the event. 'The Hurricane' became the unsung star of the eight-day long event, which attracted record numbers in what has become a flagship event for Wolverhampton.

More than 13,000 people have passed through the Civic's doors since play started the previous weekend.

PDC owner Barry Hearn stated two weeks ago that we could reach a point with today's throwers that only a three-figure average will present a chance of winning.

Van Gerwen lost 16-10 in Friday night's quarter-final with an average of 103.87, slightly inferior to Huybrechts' 104.83. That's the standard we may come to expect.

The group stages had spelled the end for the likes of Lewis, Simon Whitlock and 2010 Grand Slam champion Scott Waites.

The man victorious at the Civic in 2012, Raymond van Barneveld, was stunned 10-7 by Keegan Brown in the second round, where James Wade and Peter Wright also exited.

Chisnall eventually broke Brown's resolve 16-14 after another close-run affair comes the quarters while another young impressionist Michael Smith, was hammered 16-3 by Taylor.

BDO world champion Stephen Bunting's debut year in the PDC goes from strength to strength. Only King could halt his charge, 16-9 in the last eight.

So that was the 2014 Grand Slam. On and off the oche, it's just getting better and better.

Walsall 1 Sheff Utd 0

WALSALL are just three games from history with the 1-0 win over Sheffield United at the Banks's, courtesy of a rare headed goal from Romaine Sawyers, means the Saddlers are just two rounds away from a first-ever Wembley appearance.

It might only be the Johnstone's Paint Trophy, a competition which clearly fails to capture the imagination of supporters judging by the gate.

But should Dean Smith's men successfully negotiate next month's Area semi-final and a two legged Area final, nobody will be complaining.

Victory extended the current unbeaten run to four games and progress in this competition gives further credence to the feeling this is a season finally getting off the ground.

From a corner, Sawyers dashed to the near post to glance Forde's delivery home. With their noses in front, the hosts set about trying to find a second .

CAPTAIN Sam Ricketts says he never considered moving during his Wolves exile – as boss Kenny Jackett hinted he was back for good.

Ricketts's performance was one of the few highlights of Saturday's 5-0 demolition by Derby as he was recalled for only his second League start of the season. The 33-year-old was preferred at left-back as Tommy Rowe stood down and Scott Golbourne was injured.

"This is football and I'm wise enough to know it's a long season and funny things happen," said Ricketts, who is one of two Wolves players, with Lee Evans, in the Wales squad for Sunday's Euro 2016 qualifier in Belgium.

"Like any player I want to play and I'm just trying to make it hard for the manager by performing well in training and in games when I get chances.

"You just keep going, keep yourself fit and if you show a good attitude, hopefully it will come.

"As club captain I have a responsibility to myself and to my team-mates.

England 3 Slovenia 1

Football

SATURDAY at Wembley was a total non-event.

But Saturday's low-key Euro 2016 qualifier against the minnows from Eastern Europe tested the theory like never before.

England were uninspiring but more than good enough to win, the loyal but subdued spectators failed to get excited, Wayne Rooney picked up his 100th cap, Danny Welbeck took another step forward in his international career and a couple of young full-backs seized their opportunity.

And, having been forced into starting with Arsenal's Kieran Gibbs, Hodgson watched the young Arsenal left-back send out a message to Leighton Baines and Luke Shaw.

Yet Hodgson missed the chance to blood in-form Albion star Saido Berahino – whose exploits have captured the imagination of more than just Baggies fans if the cheers which greeted his name were any guide – and give exciting Everton youngster Ross Barkley another opportunity.

And only when he was pushed into a tactical change in the second half did his side find any semblance of conviction and tempo, eventually winning the game thanks to Rooney's penalty and Welbeck's brace after they were jolted into life by Jordan Henderson's hapless own-goal.

The diamond system designed to get the best from Rooney and Raheem Sterling stifles the rest of the side and it took a switch in the wake of Slovenia's opener, with Sterling and Welbeck providing the previously non-existent width either side of Rooney, to turn the tide.

The first half had been turgid, England dominating possession yet lacking a spark, but three goals in 10 second-half minutes finally gave the fixture a jump-start. It was the visitors who took the lead as Henderson glanced a free-kick over keeper Joe Hart and into England's net on 57 minutes.

A minute later Rooney was fouled in the box and stepped up to blast home the ensuing penalty.

If that goal was a touch fortunate, the next was sublime as, on 72, Welbeck received Gibbs' pass, played a brilliant one-two with Sterling and finished with composure. It was a moment of class and excitement at odds with the general tone of a game.

Danny Welbeck celebrates scoring England's second goal with Wayne Rooney and Kieran Gibbs

Dunkirk 1 AFC Wulfs 2

A resilient performance with 10 men saw AFC Wulfrunians record an impressive victory over struggling Dunkirk.

Dave Asbury was given a red card after 38 minutes, but Wulfs held on to claim three Midland League Premier Division points.

The hosts had gone ahead after just three minutes; Liam Garner arrived in the penalty box to meet Dexter Atkinson's low cross and he placed it firmly past Danny Tipton.

Wulfs were awarded a penalty five minutes later-and Jake Sedgemore sent Jordan Fell the wrong way from the spot.

Andy Thompson put the visitors ahead shortly after. Gregg played a great ball to him and he turned the defender before smashing his effort in off the bar.

Pershore 4
Old Wulfrunians 2

OLD Wulfs suffered their first defeat of the season against a determined Pershore.

Darryl Ablard turned the tide, regaining control in the middle of the park, and Dave Ward struck a penalty corner to level things at half time. Defensive errors cost Wulfs in the second period, keeper Pearson beaten in a one-on-one. Old Wulfs wasted a series of opportunities thanks to a combination of poor finishing and good saves from the goalie. Dave Ward then had the chance to level but missed a penalty stroke before making amends with another penalty corner goal to level again at 2-2. But Pershore won and converted their own penalty stroke before sealing the win.

Cain staying on at Banks's

WALSALL were set to extend midfielder Michael Cain's loan stay from Leicester City.

A deal to keep the 19-year-old at the Banks's has been agreed and barring any late paperwork issues is all set to be rubber stamped in time for him to feature against Shrewsbury Town in the FA Cup.

The Saddlers have lost just one of the six games in which Cain has played since joining on a one month loan deal last month and manager Dean Smith has been hugely impressed with his performances.

Leicester have agreed to-extending the loan.

Walsall 0 Peterborough 0

FOR all Walsall's progress one big, unwanted statistic remains – they still haven't won a league game without Tom Bradshaw.

Saturday's draw with Peterborough means they have now taken just two points from a possible 18 from games in which their top scorer has missed.

And with the 22-year-old's ongoing hamstring problems showing no signs of leaving for good, it's a real cause for concern. Manager Dean Smith felt Bradshaw may not have made much of a difference against the Posh.

We'll never know. But it is reasonable to surmise he would have done, in a match where the Saddlers had everything but the finish.

And while it might seem a little unfair to focus on their record without Bradshaw, when they are five games unbeaten and getting so much else right at the moment, it is unavoidable. The statistics speak for themselves.

The Saddlers have scored just 14 goals in 17 league games, with Bradshaw having contributed almost half. More worryingly, Romaine Sawyers' goal in last Wednesday's Johnstone's Paint Trophy win over Sheffield United was the only time another Saddlers player, other than Bradshaw, has found the net in the last seven games across all competitions.

The general consensus around the dressing room is that it will only be a matter of time before the rest start of the strike-force start firing. It needs to happen soon, or this may still be a season spent in the wrong half of the table. On Saturday it was the turn of Mathieu Manset to be tested in a first league start for almost two months.

There were moments, particularly in the first half, when his play looked promising and he got into several good positions. Yet all too often he let himself down with the execution, sending one all too memorable cross in particular clattering into the old scoreboard.

The best chances fell to Sawyers, who had an off day in front of goal. In the first half, he completely missed a Jordan Cook cross, where any notable touch would likely have beaten visiting keeper Ben Alnwick.

The Saddlers' inability to make their dominance pay meant they ended with a feeling of frustration but, away from the forward line, there was plenty of good news.

Not least in Michael Cain, who responded to the news his loan spell from Leicester City is almost certain to be extended with his best performance in a Saddlers shirt. At times in the opening half, the 19-year-old seemed to be everywhere, whether it be winning challenges or setting up attacks with his crisp passing.

Bringing a player so young, who had only one senior start to his name, into what was a struggling Saddlers side last month was a gamble but one which has paid off for Smith.

ALBION hero Darren Moore believes international recognition is just the "tip of the iceberg" for Saido Berahino.

The 21-year-old striker could become the first outfield Baggies player to play for England in 30 years when Roy Hodgson's side take on Scotland .

Moore, who is now back at Albion coaching the club's pro development phase players, believes Berahino has set an example for others to follow and believes the young striker will only get better.

La Parra 'must fight' for his place

FLYING Dutchman Rajiv Van La Parra has been told he must "battle and scrap" to win his Wolves place back – as Kenny Jackett considered a recall for Jack Price.

The 23-year-old hasn't started the last five games since a disappointing performance in the 3-3 draw at Millwall on October 18.

But with head coach Jackett looking for options as the winter approaches, the former Heerenveen flier has been assured there is a place for his pace and power.

"He has to realise we need him to scrap and battle to get himself in the game. He has the attributes to do that, making that adjustment to the English game," said the boss.

"We're going to need his pace and I'll be looking for him to go again in our first team.

"Rajiv made a good start but maybe battling for the ball and being competitive is a new side to the game for him.

"He has a really good character and I think he'll learn from it and come through it. That's what I'm looking for."

Football

AN Albion fans' spokesman has welcomed plans for a new 'fan zone' that will be launched on the site of a derelict pub right next to The Hawthorns next season.

Official supporters club chairman John Homer believes the scheme, which is planned for the historic Hawthorns pub, will help deal with the 'dearth' of facilities for fans on match days and will be somewhere for the Baggies fans to gather.

The Baggies this week revealed plans for a new match-day 'fan zone' in and around the Grade II listed building with the club hoping to demolish the east and west wings of the pub early next year to make way for the initiative for the supporters of the Premier League club.

The proposals for the site, on the junction of Halfords Lane and Birmingham Road, include live music, children's activities, food, drink and merchandise stands and a big screen.

Homer said: "It is an admirable idea.

"There is a dearth of facilities for fans close to the ground and hopefully this idea will help do something about it.

"Fans struggle for things to do before the games so if this can help create some more atmosphere near the ground then I am all in favour of it.

"If it encourages more young fans to come along with their parents because there is something they can do before the game, it can only be a good thing," added the chairman.

"If the game isn't as good as they'd hoped, they will still have had a fun day out. It should help to improve the experience for the fans."

The proposal will run alongside a plan, already approved by Sandwell Council, for a drive-through coffee shop in the listed section of the building, which dates back to the 1840s and will remain after the proposed demolition of the 'wings' which were added later.

Parts of the building and the land around it, including the current car park, will house the new fan zone.

● England full-back Luke Shaw has hailed Albion striker Saido Berahino as an "unbelievable talent". Berahino looked likely to make his England debut in Glasgow alongside his Under-21s team-mate.

And the Manchester United defender said: "He's an unbelievable talent. "

Wolves 2 Leamington Lions Ladies 0

WOLVES moved into the next round of the Birmingham County Cup with a comfortable win over Leamington.

Wolves dominated the game throughout, but struggled to put away the plentiful chances that they created which could have changed the final score of the match up.

Dani Selmes headed over from a Jen Anslow cross, before seeing another effort well saved by the goalkeeper's feet to keep the home team off the scoreboard.

Jen Kikomeko dragged an effort wide from the edge of the box and Leila Hopkins saw her effort saved as Wolves enjoyed the majority of the play in a lively first half at Keys Park but all the efforts reaped little reward for the squad.

The second half saw Wolves continue to apply the pressure, keeping the ball in the Leamington half, but unable to capitalise, as Selmes chipped an effort over when through on goal and Laura McQuilkin was denied from close range after connecting with a Selmes cross.

With 20 minutes left in the game Wolves upped their tempo, stretching their opponents with quick passing and surging wing-play, with McQuilkin and Jen Anslow causing the Leamington defence all sorts of problems but still nothing showing on the sheet.

The pressure finally told on the Leamington defence when Selmes was brought down in the area for a penalty with just 15 minutes left on the clock.

Football

Selmes got up to calmly dispatch the spot kick to ease the nerves that were beginning to build and this proved the turning point as Wolves consolidated their lead.

Wolves put the game beyond doubt three minutes later when McQuilkin played in Kikomeko, whose delightful turn saw her lose her marker before firing past the goalkeeper to give her side a two goal lead which they held on to until the final whistle.

Wolves will be delighted to have got a much needed win under their belts after a pretty poor run of defeats and only one draw in the league where they have yet to win a game.

They will now be looking to take the success of this performance into this week's league game where they are at home to Huddersfield and the game kicks off at 2pm.

Wolves: McElroy, Hakeman, Woodcock, Salter, Anslow, Luke, Hopkins (Perks), McQuilkin, Salisman (North), Kikomeko (Barbaccia), Selmes. Unused Sub: Widdal.

New signing Michael Neale, centre, with promoter Gary Patchett and Will Pottinger

CRADLEY fans raised the roof at the Copthorne Hotel in Brierley Hill after news broke of the club's survival for 2015.

Almost 300 riders, officials and supporters packed the Earls Suite to hear the news that the reigning National League champions will be back to defend their title with home meetings at Birmingham's Perry Barr Stadium.

And in a further boost for the sport it was confirmed the Brummies will also return to the track – also in the National League – after their mid-season collapse this year through financial troubles.

Heathens lost the use of Monmore Green which is only available for Elite League Wolves next year and there have been serious concerns over possible closure of the former Dudley Wood outfit.

But club co-boss Gary Patchett said: "It's been hard, it's been tough, but we have agreed an arrangement with Birmingham to share Perry Barr next year.

"We have done this purely because of the supporters. We have so far been unsuccessful in finding a piece of land to call our own in the Dudley or Sandwell . "I would like to thank Tony Mole at Birmingham and hope the Brummies fans turn out to support their side as well."

Etheridge is to fight a decider

WALSALL'S Liam Etheridge has granted Mat Windle a rematch for the UniBox Central England flyweight title to take place on home turf next month, writes Craig Birch.

Etheridge avenged his defeat to Windle in the England Elite national competition earlier this year when he snatched the belt nine days ago.

But the 20-year-old, who represents Pleck Boxing Club, feels they need to go at it again to truly decide who is the better fighter at 52kg.

They are set for battle at the Banks's Stadium on Thursday December 11 with Etheridge hoping to defend his crown twice. He said: "It's 1-1 between me and Mat now."

Darlaston's seven hits top spot

Red Star Alma 0
Darlaston Town 7

DARLASTON Town went top of West Midlands Division Two with a magnificent 7-0 win against landlords Red Star Alma.

John Reeves grabbed a hat-trick and a strike by Ashley Walker gave Darlo a 4-0 half-time lead.

Skipper Ryan McAllister, top scorer Mark Swann and Sam Melia, with his first goal for the club, completed the rout in the second half, with Alma's Michael Peach sent off.

Wolves blow as Dicko doubtful for match

Football

NOUHA DICKO dealt Wolves a fresh injury blow as he faces missing the Nottingham Forest game on Saturday.

The four-goal striker missed Mali's 2-0 defeat against Malawi last weekend after suffering tight hamstrings again in training when he was passed fit by Wolves before he travelled to join up with the squad a week ago.

Dicko faced a 10-hour flight from Namibia before returning home yesterday to be assessed by Wolves.

Team-mate Bakary Sako, who played in the Malawi game, is still with the squad preparing for tomorrow's final African Nations Cup qualifier against group winners Algeria which Mali need to win to be sure of making the finals in Equatorial Guinean.

"Dicko felt his hamstring in training and has come back, so we shall see," said head coach Kenny Jackett.

"As for this Saturday, I think he's extremely doubtful.

"He flew back into the country yesterday and he's doubtful for Saturday, but you never know." Dicko missed the three games before the international break with the same problem and Jackett admits the problem has resurfaced.

"We'll see – the good thing is there's no damage but it's recurring so it does seem as if there's an underlying problem," he said. "And it would be a risk. Hopefully we don't need him (on Saturday)."

"It doesn't seem to be too bad. It's only some tightness but it shows how close it was last week and how unpredictable hamstring injuries can be. Hopefully we can get to the bottom of it and make sure he has no more problems. He's picked this up after being approved by ourselves and myself to go (with Mali).

"Maybe he had that in his mind, but as of last Friday and Saturday he was fine. He missed the last series of internationals with a heel problem, probably during that two-week period that cleared up and he trained and it was OK."

Meanwhile Forgotten Wolves winger Razak Boukari is finally set to return to full training in two weeks.

Evans may have to face surgery

LEE EVANS may have to undergo surgery in what could be another injury blow to Wolves.

The 20-year-old midfielder has suffered a broken scaphoid and has been playing with a cast for several weeks.

Beckham suffered the same injury when as England captain he fell heavily during a 2-1 victory over South Africa in May 2003.

Evans had to wait again for his Wales debut after being a non-playing member of Chris Coleman's squad that played a Euro 2016 qualifier away to Belgium last night.

"It will either clear up in the next couple of weeks or he'll need to have it operated on.

Wolves are currently without Dave Edwards and Scott Golbourne, although there is an outside chance both may be fit for Saturday.

Sporting Khalsa 4
W-ton SC 0

Khalsa dominated throughout and but for some wayward finishing and an inspired performance by visiting goalkeeper Sam Benton, the scoreline would have looked even more one-sided.

DANNY IS READY TO FACE FOREST

WOLVES boss Kenny Jackett says Danny Graham is ready to hit the ground running as he claimed the move could become longer term.

The 29-year-old on-loan Sunderland striker joined his new team-mates for the first time in training this week and is preparing for a debut against Nottingham Forest on Saturday.

Football

Graham, who has only played once this season, replaces Yannick Sagbo, who was sent back to Hull because he wasn't match-fit.

But Jackett believes the former Watford and Swansea frontman is ready to play, with Nouha Dicko back from international duty early with a recurrence of his tight hamstrings.

"He's ready to play and is very keen to play and that showed in his 'mini' medical," said the boss.

Confident

"I'm very confident – he's done all the fitness tests to make sure he could play beforehand because without a games record this season that transition to first-team football can be difficult.

"His fitness was very good. He's played Under-21 football and behind-closed-doors games.

"Our physios and fitness people were very confident to take him.

Jackett won't change formation to play two out-and-out strikers.

"Not necessarily, no," he said. "With us not looking the same team when Dicko hasn't played, we did need an established option. If they had to play together they could. Danny's a clever player who's good with his back to goal.

"He has a goalscoring record at this level and at Swansea he was a big threat playing in a similar system to ours.

"If you get the ball into the box and can get crosses in regularly I have every confidence he can score."

Former Wolves and Villa assistant boss John Ward worked with Kenny Jackett's new loan signing when he was Carlisle manager.

"He's a good hold-up player – he brings people into play and can make the most of good deliveries into the penalty box," said Ward, who is seeking a coaching job after leaving the Bristol Rovers hot-seat in March.

French defeat for Under-21s

ENGLAND Under-21s threw away a 2-0 lead as their 11-match winning streak was ended by France in a friendly in Brest.

An early brace from Harry Kane was not enough to secure victory. Wolves duo Dominic Iorfa and Kortney Hause figured for England Under-20s as they beat Portugal on penalties.
